

REACH AGREEMENT ON NEW TAX BILL

WATSON HITS AT PURPOSE OF MANY PROBES

Declares They Are Designed To Break Down the Faith Of the People

STANDARD IS HIGH

Never More Exacting in Public Service Than Under Pres. Coolidge

Indianapolis, May 21 (By the A. P.)—An assault upon the work of what were characterized as the destructive forces temporarily in control of the situation at Washington and a restatement of Republican principles constituted the main themes of the keynote address delivered to the Republican State Convention here today by its temporary chairman, Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana.

Besides assailing the Senate investigators as seekers after political advantage regardless of the effect of their work on their national government, Senator Watson reviewed the accomplishments of the Republican party since Civil War days; attacked the record of the Democratic party and praised the achievements of the Harding-Coolidge administration in the field of international relations. He laid stress upon the Senate investigations declaring that they were not only obstructive of the enactment of needed legislation, but also designed to break down the faith of the American people in their national institutions.

"We are now witnessing the baneful effects of the activities of obstructive forces at Washington," he said. "For many weeks the work of legislation has been hindered by the efforts of certain powerful elements temporarily in control of the situation, to break down the faith of the American people in their national administration regardless of its effect on their national government. For weeks the newspapers of the land have reeked with stories of public corruption, exaggerated out of all proportion to their true value, broadcast from the capitol at Washington as an overture to the campaign of 1924."

"The Republican party does not defend wrongdoing in public officials in either state or nation. The protest that the personal guilt of an isolated official is a party matter is essentially hypocritical. The attempt to make it appear, on no larger grounds than yet have been developed, that the government is reeking with rottenness, is a kind of politics which strikes not so much at the party in power as at the heart of government itself. It is on the effect of this remarkable campaign has been to create distrust in the hearts of the people and fear in all phases of business. It has bred a morbid state of mind throughout the country and in such an atmosphere initiative and enterprise are chilled."

"The present is filled with doubt and the future with forebodings because no man knows what the morrow will bring forth. As a result, the factory wheels have been slowing down, unemployment is on the increase and the great prosperity we have been enjoying as the result of confidence in our government, confidence in our institutions, confidence in the soundness of our business enterprises and in our financial stability, and confidence in our fellow men, is slowly waning because of these repeated assaults upon them all for purely partisan purposes."

"Believe me, fellow Republicans, when I say that the government of this nation is clean and safe, I mean it. Believe me when I say that the foundations of the Republic still stand, secure against the attacks of those who would undermine or overthrow them, safe in the affections of the people whose rights they protect and whose interests they safeguard. The spots on the sun do not blacken the orb. The few instances of official wrongdoing are infinitely small as compared with the cases where public officials have been and are patriotically and honestly doing their duty every day and every hour."

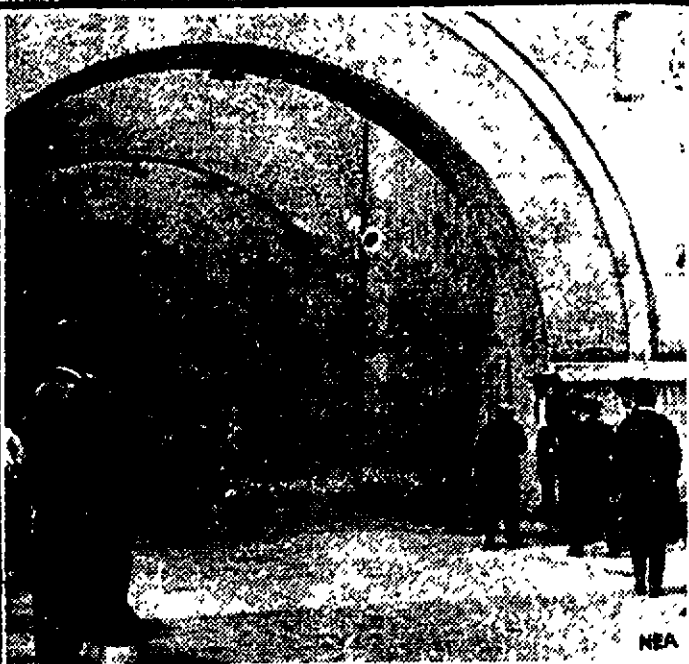

Standard Under Coolidge

"The standard of official conduct under Calvin Coolidge is high, in very truth never higher, and hopeless indeed would be the future of our republic should any other rule obtain. Knowing the President of the United States as all Americans do, his integrity, his zeal for the national welfare, his inflexible morality, his fixity of purpose for the right, it is unfortunate that, with all the great post-war problems confronting us, and demanding solution at our hands, the business of the nation should be halted for weeks by the leaders of the party out of power which have been engaged in an effort to blacken the government and besmirch the Republican party."

"We all know that that effort has been a dismal failure. We all know that the people have grown weary with the flow of gossip and the flood of scandal with which they have been deluged from Washington. They are interested first of

SCORES TRAPPED IN TUNNEL

Gas believed to have been generated by automobiles overcame scores during a traffic jam in Pittsburgh's new Liberty tube, a long tunnel for automobile use. The congestion was due to increased auto traffic, caused by the street car strike. Twenty victims were taken to hospitals in a serious condition. This picture shows people waiting outside the tunnel mouth while rescue crews were at work.

"POPPY WEEK" WILL BE OBSERVED IN BISMARCK, BEGINNING SATURDAY

American Legion Auxiliary Undertakes Annual Campaign to Net Funds For the Aid of Disabled Ex-Servicemen in the State—Poppies Are Made by Disabled Veterans of World War.

"Poppy Week will be observed in Bismarck. The annual sale of poppies, by members of the American Legion Auxiliary, for the benefit of the welfare fund for disabled ex-service men, will open in Bismarck Saturday, May 24. The arrangements for the sale are in charge of a committee of which Mrs. G. N. Nelson is chairman.

"Poppy Week has come to be a week of sentiment. Wearing poppies signifies a remembrance of the days of the World War and those who suffered in it. Though sentiment rules the sale, the object is strictly utilitarian.

The poppies to be offered for sale here are made by disabled veterans in hospitals, who are paid one cent each for their work. The material is furnished them. The result is that 80 percent of the receipts go into the fund to care for disabled and needy veterans.

Last year over $400 was netted by the Legion and Auxiliary and it is hoped to exceed the amount this year. The money is to be used for state hospitalization work and for general welfare work. The demand for funds is greater than one might believe, according to members of the auxiliary. The poppy sale does not cover everything, but does help the ex-service men's organizations in their work. There are now but few ex-service men left in hospitals in the city, but there are a great many in the state, and the poppy sale is but one means of providing funds to give them the care that shows their services are not forgotten. All of the expenditures, however, are made quietly and unobtrusively, both that part which goes to the aid of disabled veterans and that part to general welfare work for veterans.

Mrs. Nelson has appointed the following captains, who are selecting their teams: Mrs. J. C. Beck, Mrs. G. F. Bird, Mrs. J. L. Barth, Mrs. Philip Elliott and Miss Leila Dismen. Volunteers are being asked, and girls who will aid in the sale are asked to notify the captains.

Headquarters will be opened Saturday in the Grand Pacific hotel. Large poppies were being offered to business houses today for decorative purposes. Large poppies may also be secured by the general public for decorative purposes.

NONPARTISAN KEY-NOTE IS GIVEN PUBLIC

T. H. H. Thoresen, Candidate For Attorney-General, Opens the Campaign

DEFENDS INDUSTRIES

Declares Big Money Interests Are Out to Break Down The State Banks

McClusky, N. D., May 21.—The virtual key-note of the Nonpartisan League state political campaign was sounded here last night by T. H. H. Thoresen, of Dunn county, league candidate for Attorney-General, who began a speaking tour yesterday which will carry him into many cities. Other League speakers have taken the stump.

"Come and join us in this fight for democracy," said Mr. Thoresen, concluding his address. "Let businessmen, laborers, farmers and professional men join hands in this fight. It is a fight where all good citizens belong. Let us put this program over and demonstrate once and for all that we are going to rid ourselves of the shackles of industrial slavery which is sinking down to utter hopelessness thousands, yes millions, of good Americans every year."

"Let us clean our government of graft and corruption and demonstrate once again to the whole world that America, the land of the free, is capable of working out her own salvation for the good of all the people and thus give courage and hope to the struggling masses of humanity for all over the world that the United States will lead them to a better and nobler life. Let us put into operation in this state the industrial program. Let us all, regardless of political belief, put our shoulder to the wheel and push and pull together for a greater and better North Dakota. And if we do, then I feel that we can truthfully say with the orator: 'A vision of the future rises. I see our country filled with happy homes with firesides of content, the foremost land of all the earth.'"

Changes Take Place

Mr. Thoresen, in opening his address, declared that "tremendous and momentous are the changes that have taken place in the world of politics during the last few years. He assailed men and events in Washington, and declared that "we make it possible for nations to rise one against the other and continue the consumption of life and property. For what? To determine who is to collect the interest on the world debt."

He charged that the national government was "not a government of the people but, in contrast, a government of special privilege by special interests for special interests." He declared people have awakened to the realization that the

FARM AID BILL DISCUSSION IS HELD UP TODAY

Will be Resumed Tomorrow. However, Under Agreement Which Is Accepted

Washington, May 21.—Discussion of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was side-tracked in the House today by agreement for discussion of miscellaneous measures. Debate will be resumed tomorrow, however, under the program accepted late yesterday allowing 15 hours for general discussion and calling for day and night sessions in an effort to get action by Saturday night or early next week despite the delay yesterday in making a start.

The bill received only brief discussion after it was reached yesterday afternoon, running into a series of quorum calls, which continued for more than two hours after the dinner recess until enough members had been rounded up by the sergeants-at-arms to permit the chairman to proceed.

Representative Voight of Wisconsin, a Republican member of the agricultural committee, opposing the bill as a price-fixing measure, made the only address at the night session, which ended shortly before midnight.

BONUS FACTOR CHANGE GIVEN BY ACTUARIES

Table Made Public Based on Full Amount Insurance Individual Might Get

TOTAL REMAINS SAME

Washington, May 21. (By the A. P.)—Veterans bureau actuaries informed members of Congress today for the first time that the list of "factors" prepared by them and recently made public for computing the amount of insurance due under the bonus law took into account the extra 25 percent of adjusted service compensation allowed by the bill on insurance certificates.

This means that a veteran in computing the value of the insurance policy he will receive simply will multiply his credit at $125 a day for foreign service and one dollar a day for home service by his factor, which previously has been made public.

The extra 25 percent is not to be added as heretofore announced. As an example, if the veteran has the maximum amount of home service credits, $500, the insurance policy would amount to about 2 1/2 times that amount, or $1,250, according to the age of the veteran.

H. P. Brown, Veterans Bureau actuary, explained the table of factors recently made public has been based on values of $125 instead of $100 as usual and thus took into account the extra 25 percent allowed by the bill and saved double computation.

This will result in lower values for insurance policies all along the line than have been figured by Congress, Brown said, but would make no difference in the estimated total cost of the bill, since all these factors have been taken into consideration by the actuaries of both Veterans Bureau and the Treasury Department who figured on the expense.

The above situation should be taken into account by veterans in figuring their insurance from factors given in The Tribune yesterday.

HOOVER URGES RAIL MERGERS FOR RATE CUTS

Secretary of Commerce Tells Senate Committee Benefit Would Come

CITES THE ADVANTAGES

Cummins Law Permitting Mergers Is Held Most Important Action Now

Washington, May 21.—Consolidation of railway properties as proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Cummins, Republican, Iowa, was endorsed by Secretary Hoover today before the Senate interstate commerce committee.

The plan would require that the plan of a more equitable structure of rates since the rate structure could be reorganized without disturbing the present earning rate level of the roads. It would permit relief in lower rates to agriculture and, he thought, by imposing a heavier burden in the way of rates upon finished goods.

The most important step that could be taken now to promote railway consolidation, the Secretary declared, would be the passage of some such law as that proposed by Senator Cummins, since the essential matter is now affirmative action by Congress. He suggested that neither the Interstate Commerce Commission nor Congress should do anything final in that direction, however, until the public had been given opportunity to thoroughly consider and discuss whatever consolidation plan the commission may recommend.

The Secretary said another argument for consolidation was that it would bring about reorganization of freight terminals which he thought would be vitally important in bringing about lower rates. Terminal charges often cost shippers more, he said, than railroad rates.

Tokio, May 21. (By the A. P.)—The American army aviators flying around the world are being delayed at Hittokappu Bay, island of Yezo, in the Kuriles, by bad weather.

Minot, N. D., May 21.—E. E. Freedden, Ryder hotel proprietor, and Charles F. Colfoss, agricultural editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, plan to leave Ryder today for a trip through the "Grand Canyon of the Little Missouri river," to serve as a trail blazing expedition for a tour, to be conducted later, probably in July, in which Minot business men and others are to be invited to join.

The July tour will have as its primary purpose the exploring and establishing as a national park of the famous, so-called "Badlands" of North Dakota. It is planned to ask congress to set aside this country as a park to be known as "The Grand Canyon of the Little Missouri river."

When Mr. Freedden and Mr. Colfoss return they will perfect arrangements for the tour, assisted by the Minot Association of Commerce, which is much interested in seeing this particularly scenic developed. It is possible that the July tour will enter the canyon at Watford City.

MANY EVENTS KEEP VISITORS TO CITY BUSY

State Business and Professional Women Will End Session Here Tonight

HEAR FINE TALKS

Miss Prichard, National President, Urges Aid For Young Girls in Business

The fifth annual session of the state federated business and professional women's clubs will close this evening after a busy day in which talks by Miss Henrietta Lund, head of the Children's Bureau of North Dakota in which she related some of the problems the Bureau is called upon to solve and the manner in which the organized clubs may assist, and an address by Miss Hazel McCulloch of Minot on "Law not War". Mrs. W. E. Fitzsimmons sang two numbers for the convention just before adjournment to visit the capitol, "Promise of Life" and a lullaby which were greatly enjoyed.

The day was opened with a breakfast given at the Bismarck B. & P. W. Club rooms for the state and national officers after which the convention was called to order at 9 o'clock and opened with chorus singing led by Mrs. Fitzsimmons. A group of pupils from the Junior high school which consisted of Madge Webster, Marian Sandin, Marion Strutz and Grace Lividahl sang several delightful numbers under the direction of Miss Emma Taubert, supervisor of music in the city schools. Little Miss Leon Olson sang a solo accompanied by Miss Taubert during the morning session.

The delegates were taken to the state capitol to visit the capitol and from there the delegates were guests at a vocational luncheon at the Country Club. Major A. B. Welch of Mandan addressed the convention this afternoon and Mrs. Florence Davis gave an art talk, illustrated by pictures by North Dakota artists. Following the afternoon session the delegates were taken for a drive to Mandan and interesting places there, after which the delegates were entertained at a Japanese tea at the Mandan Club rooms.

The two days session will close this evening with a business session called for 7:15 at which time the nominating and various other committees will report.

Washington, May 21.—The Senate Daugherty committee was told today that Representatives of the parliament of Justice had not sought to "frame Senator Wheeler's prosecutor, but had spied on members and its witnesses and carried away the famous diary of Gaston Means, working with an investigator.

One of the witnesses was W. Duckstein, who said he knew about the whole proceeding because his wife is a secret agent of the Department. It was she, he said, who identified in his presence the records of Means after they had been secured by rose.

SIMMONS RATE SCHEDULE GOES IN THE REPORT

10 Per Cent Maximum Surplus Rate, Urged by Democrats, Is Accepted

SOME CHANGES MADE

Publicity of Income and Tax on Individual Profits Is Ruled Out

Washington, May 21. Unanimous agreement was reached today by the conferees on the tax reduction bill. The Simmons Democratic income rate schedule providing for 40 percent maximum surplus rate and 50 percent reduction in normal income taxes under $8,000 was accepted.

Senate amendments providing for full publicity of tax returns and a tax on undistributed corporation profits were rejected by Senate Republican organization leaders that the bill as now framed would meet the approval of President Coolidge who has declared opposition to both the publicity and corporation proposals which were eliminated.

The House provision for a 40 percent increase in existing estate tax rates for the imposition of a gift tax with rate similar to the estate tax rates were accepted.

Senate Democrats in adding their proposal for a substitute corporation tax and full publicity of tax returns explained that they did so in expectation that the bill would not be objectionable to President Coolidge.

The provision for a 25 percent reduction on earned incomes was retained, but the Senate amendment restricting the amount to which it can be applied to $10,000 was accepted before a compromise was reached on a cut in the proviso. All articles calling for $20 a year were extended from the five percent tax. The House had set this limit at $10 and the House at $25.

Effect on Revenue

Senate proposals to exempt produce and merchandise in brokers' hands from the brokers' tax and to restore the full levy on billiard and pool tables and bowling alleys were approved.

The treasury proposal to limit deductions on account of capital losses to 12 1/2 percent was restored to the bill by demand of House conferees. Secretary Mellon has estimated that it would increase returns in revenue by $25,000,000 annually.

Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee estimated the bill would save $100,000,000 in the next calendar year. This did not take into account the cost of the bonus bill which it has been estimated will require an appropriation of $150,000,000 for the next fiscal year or other present measures calling for special appropriations.

Senator Smoot estimated, however, that this deficit could be met through increasing returns which would result from the stimulus to business which tax reduction would bring.

As compared with the present law, Mr. Smoot said the bill, as framed by the House, would have cut revenue by $444,720,000 in the next calendar year. The measure as framed by the Senate, he explained, cut returns by $577,120,000. As finally framed by the conference it would reduce government revenue by $472,620,000.

The provision for a 25% reduction in income tax payable this year on new $100,000 bills. Likewise, reduction of many of the excise and miscellaneous taxes was not before the conference since both bodies had agreed to the changes.

HOW BONUS IS FIGURED; BASIS OF THE AWARD

Estimated That Over 3,000,000 Veterans Will be Entitled to the Insurance

MANY TO GET CASH

Payments of $50 or Less Will Be Made in Cash by U. S.

Washington, May 20.—It is estimated that 3,000,000 veterans will be entitled to the insurance provided by the bonus bill enacted by Congress last July. The bill provides for payment to the dependents of deceased veterans of the amount of adjusted service compensation to which they would be entitled.

Adjusted service compensation is figured on the basis of $1 a day for home service and $1.25 a day for overseas service. The first 60 days cannot be counted. Also a maximum of 500 days would be allowed. All veterans up to and including the rank of captain in the army and marine corps and lieutenant in the navy are eligible for the bonus.

Average Policy $992. It is estimated that the average insurance policy would be valued at $992, while the maximum value of the policy would be about $1,000 for overseas service and $1,600 for home service.

The value of the policy would be the equivalent amount which the adjusted service credit plus 25 percent would purchase at regular insurance prices based on 4 percent interest compounded annually. To determine the latter computation a table of factors has been compiled by experts. Multiplication of the proper factor by the amount of adjusted service compensation due the veteran, plus 25 percent, would give the face value of the insurance certificate. Each certificate, of course, would vary according to the length of service of the veteran and his age at the date of issuance of the policy. The policies would be dated next January 1.

MARKET NEWS

WHEAT AGAIN FIRM EARLY

Crop Reports Lead to Better Activity on Board

Chicago, May 21.—(By the A. P.)—Less favorable crop reports from the north and southwest together with export buying at Winnipeg and an untimely Liverpool quotation gave the wheat market here an upward swing today during the early dealings. Offerings were light, the legislative outlook at Washington having a deterrent effect on sellers. Need of rain in western Kansas and western Nebraska attracted special attention. The opening, which ranged from one-eighth to one-half to five-eighths net higher, with July $1.06 3/4 and September $1.07 3/4, was followed by moderate additional gains.

Wheat held strong in the later trading with dry weather complaints including a change in the bullish aspect of the Kansas state wheat crop was emphasized. The close was firm 3/4 to 1/2 to 3/4 cents net higher, July $1.07 3/4 to 3/4 and September $1.08 1/4 to $1.08 3/4.

all in the welfare of their country and in the proper solution of its problems, and not primarily in the efforts of political leaders to gain a personal or a party advantage, and I greatly misjudge both the temper and the spirit of the people if, when the idea of November comes, they do not give unmistakable evidence of the fact that they have not been deceived into believing that manipulation is a statesmanship, that slanders is logic, that vituperation is wisdom, and that those who think and act as if they were, greatly offend the American people's sense of propriety and justice and fair dealing, which is deeply embedded in the American heart.

Stating Republican principles, Senator Watson said the Republican party offered no patent panacea guaranteed to produce the millennium. He added that the Republican party did not believe that, by undue extension of the power of government, the nation should be made a huge charitable institution with a population of dependents.

Against Socialism

"Take from our people," he said, "incentive to labor and to accumulation, strike down the industries and the enterprising the rewards of their endeavor and this Republic will sink into weakness and oblivion. We Republicans have no sympathy with socialism, that imported product of European social and economic conditions, with which America has naught in common."

"If we are to keep up the stride of progress struck by this nation, we must bid industry go forward. We must be frankly friendly to those enterprises, small and great, which have made of this nation a vast workshop and through invention and organizing genius have gained for America supremacy in the financial and primacy in the industrial world. Correct the abuses, certainly, curb and punish departures from standards of justice and fair play, to be sure, but let us not yield to the cry of the demagogues and theorists that the investor, the producer, the carrier, the distributor, shall be regarded and treated as public enemies, lest by so doing investment be driven from productive enterprise, the fires in the factories go out, the wheels of our railroads cease turning, and the American people pass through what they heretofore have experienced because of the temporary dominance in government of destructive forces pledged to tear down the pillars of prosperity."

nation is not governed by the hopes, wishes and desires of its 110 million people but by the force of the almighty dollar."

Failure Charged

He charged the present state administration had failed to make good its promises of two years ago, to give economy in state offices and tax reduction, cheap money and plenty of it, restoration of the credit of the state, open books and honesty and efficiency in administration. He declared that the only reductions in taxes made were for the railroad corporations primarily, then the banks, and other corporations like the telephone and telegraph companies.

"Two years ago we were promised that the credit of the state would be restored," said Mr. Thorsen. "The calamity which has befallen the people of the state during the two years of the present administration is sufficient proof of failure. Not only this, but it would seem that a deliberate attempt has people of the state that could easily have been given. The Bank of North Dakota, which is now being operated practically as a rural credit bank, has not made loans to the farmers in the proportion to the need. We find that the administration boasts of the restriction of the operation of the bank. Well can they boast while hundreds, even thousands of farmers are losing their farms every year."

He charged that "special prosecutors have been employed at the rate of $74 a day, so I am told, to prosecute this one banker because he was connected with a bank supposed to be friendly to the League while hundreds of bankers in this state are a hundred times more guilty of fraud and deception than this man, and not a word said nor an action started by the attorney-general's department to prosecute them."

He charged the present administration could not be expected to make the mill and elevator program a success, saying "that the present administration is opposed to the operation of the mill and elevator beyond dispute. While the cleverly came before the voters of this state and say they are willing to give it a fair trial, they are all the time working for its undoing."

Bank of North Dakota

He charged "big interests" were out to get the Bank of North Dakota. "The bulk of opposition is centered upon the Bank of North Dakota," said Mr. Thorsen. "The political question of today, be it state or national, eventually simmers down to a money question. Finance is at the bottom of the Ruhr controversy. Finance was at the bottom of the world war. Finance was at the bottom of the Mexican trouble. Finance is at the bottom of the scandals in Washington. The big interests are willing that you get anything, just so long as you leave the money to them. The reason for the fight on the industrial program and especially against the Bank of North Dakota."

What Fight Is

"My friends," said Mr. Thorsen, "this is not a fight between the people except as some of these politicians, receiving their funds from Minneapolis and God knows where else, have been able to fool some of the business people to believe that the farmers and laborers stand for their destruction. No, this is not a fight between the people of this state. It was, it would have been over with long ago. On the one side is the capitalist system with all its money and with all its agents fighting to keep the great mass of people from taking possession of their government. They know that they must keep the people from exercising their rights, otherwise they will lose their grip upon the people of this state. And they know too well that as soon as the people of one state have wrested themselves away from their control other states will follow. They know the end will come one day. Their only hope is to keep that day away as long as possible. But thank God, regardless of the outcome of this election the victory is almost won. The progressive people throughout this great nation are rising in one mighty wave, and as Pharaoh is swallowed up in the Red Sea so will the spoilers be drowned in their own inequity."

AUDITORS OF STATE GATHER

Jamestown, N. D., May 21.—The state auditors convention opened here today, with about three-fourths of the auditors in the state present. The auditors will be in session two days.

MANY EVENTS KEEP VISITORS TO CITY BUSY

Convention Opens

Yesterday afternoon's session of the convention opened at 1:30 with community chorus singing led by Mrs. W. E. Fitzsimmons.

Reports of the delegates from the different clubs of the federation followed the announcements made by the various committees and officers. As the various reports of the different clubs were made the following girls from the Junior High school interpreted in a fitting manner the principal activity of the club. The following girls represented the different clubs as listed:

Bismarck: Ardeth Guerner, Bowbells: Denny Dickinson, Devils Lake: Betty Luthhouse, Dickinson: Agnes Nielsen, Fargo: Jeanne Sæter, Grand Forks: Bernice Joslin, Jamestown: Grace Livdahl, Lincoln: Audrey Baker, Lisbon: Maxine Burdick, Mandan: Margaret White Eagle, From the Indian School: Minot: Jane Stackhouse, Business & Professional Women: Helen Bradley, Business Girls Club: Victoria Dunn, Valley City: Helen Robbins, Williston: Albertine Olson, Uncle Sam: Nettie Ellis of Mandan.

Miss Adella Prichard Addresses the Convention on the mission of the national federation to the local or state clubs and to the individual. Her talk was most thoroughly enjoyed by all privileged to hear her.

Miss Prichard spoke as one woman to another in her address and briefly told of the importance of the national federation to the state and individual club and the individual member, saying friendship, co-operation and good will were the key notes to the advantages to be derived from affiliation with the national organization; stating further that the national organization would never be any finer or any better than the individual member, herself. She pointed out that each member of the organization was either a liability or an asset and that none should care to be the former since they detracted not only from themselves but the entire organization.

Call For Service

Miss Prichard stated that though the club will have lighted its sixth birthday candle at the annual meeting of the National Federation to be held at West Baden, Indiana, this summer, the call had already reached the national officers to extend the helping hand to the business women in other lands across the seas and in the neighboring country of Canada, and that the American business and professional woman holds a particular and significant place in the world today, for ere long the time will be ripe when the national organization shall have to launch out and become international thereby benefitting the most by universal service. Women of Switzerland, Japan, China and Canada have asked for help and interest themselves to learn of the conditions surrounding the American business woman, who Miss Prichard maintains have received a rich heritage from those pioneer women who blazed the trail in the business, industrial and professional life of women and a great debt of gratitude is due these pioneers for their deep and abiding faith with a vision and courage to carry on.

The problem of the organized B. & P. W. Club as Miss Prichard sees it, is to help teach the young girl entering a business and professional life, factors entering into the successful service to that life by doing her part in creating a better business world for after all the great mission in life is service.

The Added Privilege of Citizenship

has given woman another occasion for service and Miss Prichard made a strong plea for "more education and less legislation." She stressed the thought that the time was fast approaching when women would be called upon to think and act together as one great whole for the betterment of humanity.

Development of Ideal

Three assets are at the disposal of each for the development of the ideal conditions: namely, time, money and strength and in each state there have been and still are leaders who gladly have sacrificed each for the ideal of the Federation. She said: "We are fortunate to be living under the only government founded on an ideal, for each generation has had its great leaders and faithful followers, who have believed in an ideal. We are living so near the time of the great World War that it is often hard to get the message clear, for duty, but Roosevelt had truly said—Honesty, courage and brains were the qualities necessary for any successful life."

These, Miss Prichard maintained, were the ideals to be imparted to the young woman entering the business or professional life, for at no time was there greater need for these sterling qualities for with brain power goes heart power.

She closed her splendid address with a plea that the members of the federation band themselves together in sympathetic understanding, true to themselves, each other, and their nation and reach with hands of love out to all which will in the end mean the universal band of sisterhood.

Echoes From Dallas

Miss Madara Knox of Grand Forks made the closing talk of yesterday afternoon's session in which she recounted the social and business meeting of the national board of directors at Dallas last February. Following her talk the nominating committee held an executive session and the convention was adjourned until this morning at 9 a. m.

INDEPENDENT PARLEY HELD

Stutsman Meets Workers

From Several Counties

Minot, N. D., May 21.—Independent Republican leaders from McHenry, Burke, Divide, Mountrail and Ward counties conferred in Minot yesterday with W. H. Stutsman concerning plans for an intensive campaign preliminary to the June primary.

Mr. Stutsman told the gathering that there is imperative need for work on the part of independents. A lack of interest means a small vote, he explained; and it is the stay-at-home vote that results in minority candidates being elected. "Get a full vote out June 25" will be a battle cry of the Real Republicans," he said. "Then, with the voters of the state in possession of the facts there need be no fear regarding the outcome."

"The state headquarters will carry on an active campaign to get the facts before the people of every county in the state."

County organizations, according to Mr. Stutsman, will be perfected in every county in the state, taking the work down to the precincts. "Everywhere I have been, I have found splendid sentiment," said Mr. Stutsman. "It is realized that work is needed and the men and women are taking control in wonderfully encouraging fashion."

Mr. Stutsman is holding a conference at Williston today.

COST OF ROAD BUILDING HELD LESS IN N. D.

Drop of 15 to 20 Per Cent in Prices Over Last Year, Says Engineers

2,000 MILES MAINTAINED

Contracts for 214 miles of grading and 90 miles of gravel surfacing, under the federal aid road plan, have been let this season by W. G. Black, chief engineer of the state highway commission. The contract price has averaged 15 to 20 percent lower than last year, according to highway commission engineers.

New York already applied for to be done during 1925 now approximates 200 miles, an unusually large amount for this early in the season, according to engineers. Indications are, it is said, that the steady improvement of roads will continue. No contracts are let by the highway commission unless counties request federal aid.

Maintenance of 2,000 miles of road is being carried on by the highway commission, this feature being emphasized by the highway commission.

Federal aid allotted to this state has been of great assistance to the counties in constructing better roads. The allotment to this state for the year 1924 is approximately $1,200,000 and in most cases the government pays one-half the cost of the improvement.

The average price for earth excavation this season in contracts is about 27 cents per cubic yard, while during 1923 very few bids were received for less than 30 cents per cubic yard and the average price was about 31 cents, according to commission figures. The lowest award was in Traill county, 22 1/2 cents per cubic yard, to W. H. Noel, contractor. One project was awarded in Sheridan county to F. O. Smith, contractor, at 25 cents, one in Sheridan county to F. O. Smith at 26 cents and one in Barnes county to W. H. Noel at 26 cents. Difference in the character of the road makes a difference in bids, it is said.

The average price for hauling gravel is about 18 cents per cubic yard mile as against an average price in 1923 of 22 cents, it is added. Concrete work also is lower this season than last by about 15 percent, according to Mr. Black. The lowest price on a reinforced concrete and steel bridge in Cass county, by the J. A. Janssen Bridge Company, is said by Mr. Black to be the lowest bid received by the highway commission in the past five years.

Highway commission engineers believe that lower prices are obtained because of the system installed by Mr. Black and the commission in 1923, under which payments were made to contractors as soon as work was completed. Prompt payment enabled contractors to reduce their overhead expenses, it is said. The highway commission, also, engineers say, limited the awards in 1923 to what could be completed in the year, creating more competition this year.

PUSHING CORN SHOW PLANS

Second Annual North Dakota Show Being Talked of Now

Plans for the second annual North Dakota State Corn Show, which is expected to be far greater than the first one held in Bismarck last winter, which attracted wide attention, will be discussed this week at a meeting to be held by the corn and dairy exposition committee of the Association of Commerce, Secretary Bradley said today.

The show probably will be held next November, instead of during the winter. The Hanna cup, which was won by Sargent county last winter, will be the big prize for the counties to compete for.

NORTH DAKOTA IN NEW WORK IN WORLD LEAGUE

Minot, N. D., May 21.—Howard Huston of Minot, alumnus of the University of North Dakota, and Huntington Gilchrist of Auburn, N. Y., are two American members of a committee appointed by the League of Nations to see that the work of Geneva, Switzerland, shall not be needlessly interfered with by sightseers this summer according to a news dispatch received here. Mr. Huston is chief of the internal services of the league.

League officials say they are willing that visitors, including Americans, shall have an opportunity of seeing the league at work, when such visitors really are interested and desire to gather information. However, they declare that there has been too much "open house" in the past for all comers, and in consequence curious idlers have interfered with the work of the personnel.

Mr. Huston visited various North Dakota points during a tour several months ago and warmly championed the League of Nations and contended it has done much good work.

IMPRESSIONS FROM BISMARCK

By Dr. J. R. Nannestad, Albert Lea, Minnesota, Rotarian.

North Dakota presents a number of wonderful lessons to a student of nature. The eastern half of the state does not differ much from Minnesota. You find the same prairies, the same rivers, the same lakes. Geologically speaking the two land masses belong to the same class. They are in fact both of the same age. They are both produced by the same forces. They are both remnants of the grand old ice age. But when you cross the Missouri river you enter into the true North Dakota. The landscape west of the river is entirely different and it is enormously older. The story of this region reads like a fairy tale. A geological story of North Dakota would show some wonderful pictures. At times the state would sink out of sight. Time and again the whole state has been under the ocean. Enormous waves would roll across her borders in every direction. There would be nothing in North Dakota to stop them. The only animal and vegetable life that could exist would be salt-water animals and salt-water vegetation.

From such a stage North Dakota would slowly rise again. She would form enormous mountains—only to have them carved out again by rains and rivers. Later on she would sink once more under the ocean only to re-appear and sink again. At times she was covered by enormous stretches of tropical forests almost covering the whole state. It is these enormous forests which formed the lignite bed for which Dakota is famous.

There is said to be more than twenty billion tons of lignite in North Dakota. This lignite is nothing but buried vegetation. Some of the lignite veins are twenty feet thick or more. Below and above this lignite is a layer of shale which is only another name for compressed clay. These layers of shale may be just a few inches thick.

Things again they may form masses up to thirty feet or more. The shale is produced by fine clay being washed down from the mountains into the oceans. Under pressure the clay turns into shale. There are some twenty or thirty such layers of shale and lignite in the state alternating altogether they measure about one thousand feet in North Dakota, in thickness. This alternation of shale and lignite is due to the different conditions under which they were made. The shale was made under the ocean while the lignite was made in a low swampy jungle.

The alternate layers prove that North Dakota at that time was rather unstable. The land would rise, then sink, then rise, then sink and so on a number of times.

Nature has made a number of attempts to produce coal. It did so when the earth was still young. It still produces coal. What we call lignite is really the beginning of coal. Heat may be transformed into lignite, lignite into bituminous, bituminous into anthracite. It is all a matter of time and pressure.

The lignite then is not nearly so old as the bituminous coal or the anthracite. But even so it is quite old. A good idea of the age of the lignite beds may perhaps be had if we say that the greater part of the Rocky Mountains was still under the sea at the time when the North Dakota lignite beds were laid down. In other words the North Dakota lignite fields are older than the Rocky Mountains.

Naturally I wanted to see a lignite mine, when I had a chance. We learned that there was such a mine near Bismarck. Our old friend Bill

Barneke who some years ago held the position as city engineer of Albert Lea promised to take us out in his car. This was too tempting. Some of the Albert Lea boys and myself stole away from the convention and headed for the Washburn mine near Wilton some thirty miles north of Bismarck. When we were about a mile from the lignite mine we happened upon what is known as a "Scoria" mine.

"Scoria" is simply nature's own home made brick. It is burnt shale or clay on top of a lignite seam. It happens at times that a lignite seam will catch fire for some reason or other. There you have exactly the same conditions as you find in a brick oven only on a larger and grander scale.

Some of the lignite seams have been burning ever since the first white men settled in Dakota and no one knows how much longer. The fire once started burns on for an indefinite time. The fire burns back into the very body of the hill. It is truly a burning hill.

As the lignite burns the grey clay turns into a beautiful brick. I doubt if such a condition is found anywhere else in the world.

Finally we got to the mine. We were furnished individual carbide lamps and started to descend. The mine is sixty feet below the ground. The lignite seam is twelve feet thick. The mine itself is about twenty-five miles long and tracked for about twenty miles. It was very interesting to observe their system of ventilation and water pumping. All mines are under the supervision of the state and must measure up to certain standards in order to preserve the working men's health and life.

Our guide took us for a trip of several miles through this underground city. Time and time again we saw real trunks of evergreens in the process of being changed into coal in this wonderful nature's laboratory. The lignite is an unlimited source of wealth for North Dakota in fact for the whole Northwest. It is a common thing for the Dakota farmers to have coal mines on their own lands or within short hauling distance of their homes. They simply go out for a load of coal just as our Freeborn county farmers go out for a load of wood. I am told that some of the farmers have a regular coal mine in their cellar—inexhaustible bin. The fact is that both the Freeborn county farmer and the Dakota farmer burns fuel from the forest. But the forests which the Dakota farmer burns flourished millions of years ago.

STUDENTS IN EUROPE SWAP HOMES

Paris, May 21.—During the East-of-vacation period the National Union of Students' Association of France sent several hundred young Frenchmen off to foreign lands, and in return has entertained in Paris and other university centres several hundred young foreigners sent here in exchange to get acquainted with the French students.

Fifty French university youths went to England, whose great universities always have exercised a particular attraction for Gallie students. A like-sized contingent set out for Budapest, a former enemy capital, to be sure, but a city boasting a proud old institution of learning. A similar delegation went to Verviers in Belgium, and almost simultaneously the Latin Quarter of Paris was filled with young Englishmen, Hungarians and Belgians. When the summer vacation comes, it is hoped to add Poland to the list of countries exchanging students with the French associations.

The plan, roughly, calls for an even trade. That is, the family of a British university man, for example, agrees to take in and be sponsor for a youth from the Sorbonne for a certain period, provided their own household is similarly given hospitality in a French family. In some cases student clubs may take the place of families. The authorities of the University of Paris and its allied schools are enthusiastic over the growth of the movement.

AT THE MOVIES

AT THE CAPITOL. Commencing tomorrow, picturegoers will see at the Capitol theatre, Mary Phillips' new Universal Jewel starring vehicle, and her first big role—she made picture history in "Merry-Go-Round." The story, "Pools Highway," adapted from Owen Kildare's famous life-story of the Bowery, "My Mamie Rose," is one of the year's spectacular productions by Universal.

THE ELTINGE

A little cottage in an English wood is the interesting setting around which most of the important scenes of "The Eltinge Cottage," Richard Threlkeld's picture at the Eltinge Theatre today and tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday, are staged. It is there that the crippled war hero goes to hide himself from the world, only to be followed by his pestiferous relatives. And it is there that he meets a plain little English governess and ultimately finds happiness. This cottage was designed by Livingston Platt, famous scenic artist, and represents one of the most quaint and striking settings of its kind ever devised for the motion pictures.

River Niemen, After Years Of War And Prolonged International Disputes Becomes Free Waterway For Commerce

The picture above shows Russian refugees building a bridge over the Niemen river, a waterway that has been closed for years by international disputes. The bridge is being built by a group of men, some of whom are wearing hats and coats, suggesting a cold climate. The river is wide and calm, and the background shows a dense forest. The bridge is a simple structure made of logs and planks, spanning a small section of the river. The men are working on the bridge, some standing on it and others on the bank. The scene is peaceful, despite the fact that the river has been closed for years.

A CITY BUILT FOR CHARITY

Orphan Boy's Dream Realized in Model Oklahoma Town

By NEA Service
Sand Springs, Okla., May 21.—An orphaned boy almost 60 years ago Charles Page with his finger traced in the sands of a cornfield near Steve's Point, Wis. the plans for a model city dedicated to serve humanity.

Today the boy, now grown to manhood and wealthy through millions of dollars amassed from oil, sees a realization of his immature dream in this utopian town he founded just seven miles from the outskirts of Tulsa.

Sand Springs, the city as Page intended it to be, is built about what is probably the most unique and charitable organization in the United States.

The nucleus of its life is the Sand Springs Home, an institution established to shield orphaned boys and girls from some of the hard knocks which Page had experienced most of his life.

Sand Springs Home owns outright more than 12,000 acres of fat farmland. STATE'S RICHEST ENTERPRISE. It dominates and controls a standard gauge electric line running from its door to Tulsa, runs a water and gas company, owns innumerable spouting oil wells, operates a cotton mill costing $3,000,000, sells electric power to surrounding cities and has a corporate hand mixed up in numerous other enterprises and utilities.

Altogether, Sand Springs Home is perhaps the wealthiest institution and power in Oklahoma. Its holdings and revenue run up into the millions every year.

The hundred boys and girls shielded by its broad expanse of modern buildings enjoy all the comforts and privileges of guests invited for a permanent visit to some palatial country estate.

FAMILY ATMOSPHERE. And Sand Springs Home asks nothing in return save that they fashion themselves into good men and women.

The institution operates more like a large family and does not smack in any wise of institutional air. There are parties, vacations, and time for recreation in model playgrounds equipped with every conceivable kind of apparatus from swimming pool to swings.

Local Store Enters Into Window Contest

"Congoleum Week," being celebrated nationally, is being observed by Webb Brothers furniture department this week. In connection with the week a national contest in window displays is being held, and the Bismarck store has entered in the contest.

An especially attractive window, designed particularly to demonstrate the flexibility of Congoleum rugs, has been arranged. Long rolls of Congoleum form the stockpile of an Indian camp, and within there is an Indian tent, with fire burning within, an Indian on a pony made out of Congoleum and a square. There also are fur pelts on the floor. The Congoleum is used exclusively in the window display, being designed into unusual shapes and fashions for the exhibit.

BOUND OVER TO DISTRICT COURT

Edward Allensworth, living south of the city, was bound to district court today by Police Magistrate Cashman on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. This was made a case of record by the last local trial, it being necessary for the case to go to district court, police officials who arrested Allensworth said. Jim McConnell, his companion, was sentenced to 15 days in jail on an intoxication charge.

Five speeders were fined $3.00 and costs, bringing the total to $8.50, last night by Police Magistrate Cashman.

COST OF ROAD BUILDING HELD LESS IN N. D.

Drop of 15 to 20 Per Cent in Prices Over Last Year, Says Engineers

2,000 MILES MAINTAINED

Contracts for 214 miles of grading and 90 miles of gravel surfacing, under the federal aid road plan, have been let thus far this season by W. G. Black, chief engineer of the state highway commission. The contract price has averaged 15 to 20 percent lower than last year, according to highway commission engineers.

New York already applied for to be done during 1925 now approximately 200 miles, an unusually large amount for this early in the season, according to engineers. Indications are, it is said, that the steady improvement of roads will continue. No contracts are let by the highway commission unless counties request federal aid.

Maintenance of 2,000 miles of road is being carried on by the highway commission, this feature being emphasized by the highway commission. Federal aid allotted to this state has been of great assistance to the counties in constructing better roads. The allotment to this state for the year 1924 is approximately $1,200,000 and in most cases the government pays one-half the cost of the improvement.

The average price for earth excavation this season in this state in contracts is about 27 cents per cubic yard, while during 1923 very few bids were received for less than 30 cents per cubic yard and the average price was about 31 cents, according to commission figures. The lowest award was in Traill county, 22 1/2 cents per cubic yard, to W. H. Noel, contractor. One project was awarded in Sheridan county to F. O. Smith, contractor, at 25 cents, one to Nels Brandler at 25 1/2 cents, one in Sheridan county to F. O. Smith at 26 cents and one in Barnes county to W. H. Noel at 26 cents. Difference in the character of the road makes a difference in bids, it is said.

The average price for hauling gravel is about 18 cents per cubic yard mile as against an average price in 1923 of 22 cents, it is added. Concrete work also is lower this season than last by about 15 percent, according to Mr. Black. The lowest price on a reinforced concrete and steel bridge in Cass county, by the J. A. Jardine Bridge Company, is said by Mr. Black to be the lowest bid received by the highway commission in the past five years.

Highway commission engineers believe that lower prices are obtained because of the system installed by Mr. Black and the commission in 1923, under which payments were made to contractors as soon as work was completed. Prompt payment enabled contractors to reduce their overhead expenses, it is said. The highway commission, also, engineers say, limited the work in 1923 to what could be completed in the year, creating more competition this year.

PUSHING CORN SHOW PLANS

Second Annual North Dakota Show Being Talked of Now

Plans for the second annual North Dakota State Corn Show, which is expected to be far greater than the first one held in Bismarck last winter, which attracted wide attention, will be discussed this week at a meeting to be held by the corn and dairy exposition committee of the Association of Commerce, Secretary Bradley said today.

The show probably will be held next November instead of during the winter. The Hanna cup, which was won by Sargent county last winter, will be the big prize for the counties to compete for.

NORTH DAKOTAN IN NEW WORK IN WORLD LEAGUE

Minot, N. D., May 21.—Howard Huston of Minot, alumnus of the University of North Dakota, and Huntington Gilchrist of Auburn, N. Y., are two of the members of the committee appointed by the League of Nations to see that the work of Geneva, Switzerland, shall not be needlessly interfered with by sight-seers this summer according to a news dispatch received here. Mr. Huston is chief of the internal services of the league.

League officials say they are willing that visitors, including Americans, shall have an opportunity of seeing the League at work, when such visitors really are interested and desire to gather information. However, they desire that there has been too much "open house" in the past for all comers, and in consequence curious idlers have interfered with the work of the personnel.

Mr. Huston visited various North Dakota points during a tour several months ago when he was chairman of the League of Nations and contended it has done much good work.

IMPRESSIONS FROM BISMARCK

By Dr. J. R. Nannestad, Albert Lea, Minnesota, Rotarian.

North Dakota presents a number of wonderful lessons to a student of nature. The eastern half of the state does not differ much from Minnesota. You find the same prairies, the same rivers, the same lakes.

Geologically speaking the two land masses belong to the same class. They are in fact both of the same age. They are both produced by the same force. They are both remnants of the grand old Ice Age. But when you cross the Missouri river you enter into the true North Dakota. The landscape west of the river is entirely different and it is enormously older. The story of this region reads like a fairy tale. A geological story of North Dakota would show some wonderful pictures. At times the state would sink out of sight. Time and again the whole state has been under the ocean. Enormous waves would roll across her borders in every direction. There would be nothing in North Dakota to stop them. The only animal and vegetable life that could exist would be salt-water animals and salt-water vegetation.

From such a stage North Dakota would slowly rise again. She would form enormous mountains—only to be carried out again by rains and rivers. Later she would sink once more under the ocean only to re-appear and sink again. At times she was covered by enormous stretches of tropical forests almost covering the whole state. It is these enormous forests which formed the lignite bed for which Dakota is famous.

There is said to be more than twenty billion tons of lignite in North Dakota. This lignite is nothing but buried vegetation. Some of the lignite veins are twenty feet thick or more. Below and above this lignite is a layer of shale which is only another name for compressed clay. These layers of shale may be just a few inches thick.

They again they may form masses up to thirty feet or more. The shale is produced by fine clay being washed down from the mountains into the oceans. Under pressure the clay turns into shale. There are some twenty or thirty layers of shale and lignite in the state alternating. Altogether they measure about one thousand feet in North Dakota, in thickness. This alternation of shale and lignite is due to the different conditions under which they were made. The shale was made under the ocean while the lignite was made in a low swampy jungle.

The alternate layers prove that North Dakota at that time was rather unstable. The land would rise, then sink, then rise, then sink and so on a number of times.

Nature has made a number of attempts to produce coal. It did so when the earth was still young. It still produces coal. What we call peat is really the beginning of coal. Peat may be transformed into lignite, lignite into bituminous coal, bituminous into anthracite. It is all a matter of time and pressure.

The lignite then is not nearly so old as the bituminous coal or the anthracite. But even so it is quite old. A good idea of the age of the lignite beds may perhaps be had if we say that the greater part of the Rocky Mountains was still under the sea at the time when the North Dakota lignite beds were laid down. In other words the North Dakota lignite fields are older than the Rocky Mountains.

Naturally I wanted to see a lignite mine, when I had a chance. We learned that there was such a mine near Bismarck. Our old friend Bill

Barneck who some years ago held the position as city engineer of Albert Lea promised to take us out in his car. This was too tempting. Some of the Albert Lea boys and myself stole away from the convention and headed for the Washburn mine near Wilton some thirty miles north of Bismarck. When we were about a mile from the lignite mine we happened upon what is known as a "Scoria" mine.

"Scoria" is simply nature's own home made brick. It is burnt shale or clay on top of a lignite seam. It happens at times that a lignite seam will catch fire for some reason or other. There you have exactly the same conditions as you find in a brick oven only on a larger and grander scale.

Some of the lignite seams have been burning ever since the first white men settled in Dakota and no one knows how much longer. The mine is filled with young English men, Hungarians and Belgians. When the summer vacation comes, it is hoped to add Poland to the list of countries exchanging students with the French associations.

The plan, roughly, calls for an even trade. That is, the family of a British university man, for example, agrees to take in and sponsor for a youth from the Sorbonne for a certain period, provided their own hopeful is similarly given hospitality in a French family. In some cases student clubs may take the place of families. The authorities of the University of Paris and its allied schools are enthusiastic over the growth of the movement.

Finally we got to the mine. We were furnished individual carbide lamps and started to descend. The mine is sixty feet below the ground. The lignite seam is twelve feet thick. The mine itself is about twenty-five miles long and tracked for about twenty miles. It was very interesting to observe their system of ventilation and water pumping. All mine work is under the supervision of the state and must measure up to certain standards in order to preserve the working men's health and life.

Our guide took us for a trip of several miles through this underground city. Time and time again we saw great trunks of evergreens in the process of being changed into coal in this wonderful nature's laboratory.

The lignite is an unlimited source of wealth for North Dakota in fact for the whole Northwest. It is a common thing for the Dakota farmers to have coal mines on their own lands or within short hauling distance of their homes. They simply go out for a load of coal just as our Freeborn county farmers go out for a load of wood. I am told that some of the farmers have a regular coal mine in their cellar—inexhaustible bin. The fact is that both the Freeborn county farmer and the Dakota farmer burns fuel from the forest. But the forests which the Dakota farmer burns flourished millions of years ago.

WOMEN POLICE ON INCREASE

Geneva, May 21.—Women police are increasing throughout the world notably in the United States and Great Britain, according to an investigation made by the permanent League of Nations commission for the suppression of the international traffic in women and children. The commission voiced its satisfaction at this development, recording its opinion that the appointment of women as members of police forces would have a beneficial effect in the protection of the interests of women and children throughout the world.

Among the strange specimens discovered in Brazil are flat fish with a poison spike in their tails and turtles which make noises like barking dogs.

STUDENTS IN EUROPE SWAP HOMES

Paris, May 21.—During the Easter vacation period the National Union of Students Association of France sent several hundred young Frenchmen off to foreign lands, and in return has entertained in Paris and other university centres several hundred young foreigners sent here in exchange to get acquainted with the French students.

Fifty French university youths went to England, whose great universities always have exercised a particular attraction for Gallic students. A like-sized contingent set out for Budapest, a former enemy capital, to be sure, but a city boasting a proud old institution of learning. A similar delegation went to Verviers in Belgium, and almost simultaneously the Latin Quarter of Paris was filled with young English men, Hungarians and Belgians. When the summer vacation comes, it is hoped to add Poland to the list of countries exchanging students with the French associations.

The plan, roughly, calls for an even trade. That is, the family of a British university man, for example, agrees to take in and sponsor for a youth from the Sorbonne for a certain period, provided their own hopeful is similarly given hospitality in a French family. In some cases student clubs may take the place of families. The authorities of the University of Paris and its allied schools are enthusiastic over the growth of the movement.

AT THE MOVIES

Commencing tomorrow, picturegoers will at the Capitol theatre, Mary Philbin's new Universal Jewel starring vehicle, and her first big role since she made picture history in "Merry-Go-Round." The story, "Fools Highway," adapted from Owen Kildare's famous life-story of the Bowery, "My Mamie Rose," is one of the year's spectacular productions by Universal.

THE ELLINGE

A little cottage in an English wood is the interesting setting around which most of the important scenes of "The Enchanted Cottage," Richard Barthelmess' picture at the Eltinge Theatre today and tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday, are staged. It is there that the crippled war hero goes to hide himself from the world, only to be followed by his pestiferous relatives. And it is there that he meets a plain little English governess and ultimately finds happiness. This cottage was designed by Livingston Platt, famous scenic artist, and represents one of the most quaint and striking settings of its kind ever devised for the motion pictures.

River Niemen, After Years Of War And Prolonged International Disputes Becomes Free Waterway For Commerce

The picture above shows Russian refugees building river huts on the Niemen, a waterway that, passing through three nations, has threatened the peace of Europe more than any other subject of contention since the world war. Considerable sections of Russia and Poland must use it if their products are to have free access to the sea. Its outlet, Memel, was under control of Lithuania, but against the protest of the Allied powers who held title to the territory which had been ceded to them by Germany. Incensed at the Polish seizure of Vilna, Lithuania had kept the lower stretches of the Niemen closed to all traffic from above, and refused to accept the conditions proposed by the Allies for the transfer of title and opening of traffic.

The council of ambassadors, representing the Allies, made repeated attempts to secure a settlement of the dispute, but the interested nations flouted its decisions. In December the problem was turned over to the League of Nations.

A commission of three, comprising Norman H. Davis, former Under-secretary of State for the United States, a distinguished Swedish engineer and a Holland business man, began in February of this year an investigation of the merits of the case. The commission held hearings for all the interested parties, surveyed the harbor of Memel and gauged its importance to all the affected territory. It ruled that the river must be free to all traffic and convinced the Lithuanians that they were cutting off their noses to spite their faces if they persisted in a policy of restricting commerce. The Vilna matter was outside the investigators' province. The 150,000 inhabitants of Memel receive autonomous government under the new settlement and a free zone is declared around the port. On the other hand Lithuania gets her first clear title to the territory, which had been ceded by Germany to the Allies, and which had been seized by Lithuania over Allied protests.

Last month the assembly of the League accepted the report of its commission, and the entire dispute is now considered closed. "Nobody was entirely satisfied with our decision," Mr. Davis said on his return to New York, "but both parties feared the course of the world if they defied the findings of the impartial board set up by the League. I am happy, as an American, to have had a part in settling what was admitted to be one of the sorest quarrels in post-war Europe. The people participating in the League will never yield their sovereignty but it will become increasingly hard for any group of jingoists to lead a country into war in the face of peaceful and impartial mediation offered through a body representing the enlightened opinion of 54 nations."

A CITY BUILT FOR CHARITY

Orphan Boy's Dream Realized in Model Oklahoma Town

By NEA Service

Sand Springs, Okla., May 21.—As an orphaned boy almost 60 years ago Charles Page with his finger traced in the sands of a cornfield near Steve's Point, Wis., the plans for a model city dedicated to serve humanity.

Today the boy, now grown to manhood and wealthy through millions of dollars amassed from oil, sees a realization of his immature dream in this utopian town he founded just seven miles from the outskirts of Tulsa.

Sand Springs, the city as Page intended it to be, is built about what is probably the most unique and charitable organization in the United States.

The nucleus of its life is the Sand Springs Home, an institution established to shield orphaned boys and girls from some of the hard knocks which Page had experienced most of his life.

Sand Springs Home owns outright more than 12,000 acres of fat farming land. STATE'S RICHEST ENTERPRISE. It dominates and controls a standard gauge electric line running from its door to Tulsa, runs a water and gas company, owns innumerable spouting oil wells, operates a cotton mill costing $3,000,000, sells electric power to surrounding cities and has its corporate hand mixed up in numerous other enterprises and utilities.

Altogether, Sand Springs Home is perhaps the wealthiest institution and power in Oklahoma.

Its holdings and revenue run up into the millions every year.

The hundred boys and girls shielded by its broad expanse of modern buildings enjoy all the comforts and privileges of guests invited for a permanent visit to some palatial country estate.

FAMILY ATMOSPHERE. And Sand Springs Home asks nothing in return save that they fashion themselves into good men and women.

The institution operates more like a large family and does not snack in any wise of institutional air. There are parties, vacations, and time for recreation in model playgrounds equipped with every conceivable kind of apparatus from swimming pool to swings.

Likewise there is no drudgery about the home, for all work is performed by electrical servants commanded by the institution's own power plant.

COLONY FOR AGED, TOO. Anyone who pleads the cause may carry away bacon, flour, cheese and other food products from the home's well larder refrigerator for the asking. In Sand Springs, the home maintains a widows' colony. Here widows and couples too old to work, may bring up their children with all sustenance provided free by the home.

Page, the man who made all this possible, is loath to talk about himself. "Sand Springs Home is in the world to serve but one purpose," he says. "It exists to destroy selfishness, the greatest curse of man."

POOR UNTIL 50

Page made his last stand and leaped to fortune when almost 50.

The jinx of hard luck and poverty that had pursued him since boyhood trailed him still into the swiftness and roundhouses of frontier railroad towns.

It followed close on his heels into the lumber and mining camps of the Sierra Nevada and Rockies and the cattle ranches of the great plains.

This pathway finally brought him to the Indian Territory in 1900 along with a band of adventurers.

Just south of the Kansas line Page halted and drove his tent peg to take one last chance.

The first well was followed by others, and soon Page, the dreaming orphaned boy, had the millions which made his early dream come true.

BOUND OVER TO DISTRICT COURT

Edward Allensworth, living south of the city, was bound to district court today by Police Magistrate Cashman on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. This was made a severe offense by the last legislature, it being necessary for the case to go to district court, police officials who arrested Allensworth said. Jim McConnell, his companion, was sentenced to 15 days in jail on an intoxication charge.

The welfare of their country and in the proper solution of its problems and not primarily in the efforts of political leaders to gain a personal or party advantage, and to the spirit of the people if, when the time of November comes, they do not give unmistakable evidence of the fact that they have not been deceived into believing that modernizing is statesmanship, that statesmen are those who are not deceived and that those who think and act of them, are greatly of the American people's sense of justice and justice and fair dealing, which is deeply embedded in the American heart.

Starting Republican principles, Senator Watson said the Republican party offered no patent panacea guaranteed to produce the millennium. He added that the Republican party did not believe that by mere extension of the power of government, the nation should be made a large charitable institution with a population of dependents.

Against Socialism
"Take from our people, he said, the incentive to labor and to accumulate, strain from the industrious and the enterprising the rewards of their endeavor and this Republic will sink into weakness and oblivion. We Republicans have no sympathy with socialism, that imported product of European social and economic conditions, with which America has naught in common."

If we are to keep up the stride of progress struck by this nation, we must bid industry go forward. We must be frankly friendly to those enterprises, small and great, which have made of this nation a vast workshop and through invention and organizing genius have gained for America supremacy in the financial and primary in the industrial world. Correct the abuses, certainly, curb and punish departures from standards of justice and fair play, to be sure, but let us not succumb to the cry of the demagogues and theorists that the investor, the producer, the carrier, the distributor, shall be regarded and treated as public enemies, lest by so doing investment be driven from productive enterprises, the fires in the factories go out, the wheels of our railroads cease turning, and the American people pass through what they heretofore have experienced because of the temporary dominance in government of destructive forces pledged to tear down the pillars of prosperity.

Failure Charged
He charged the present state administration had failed to make good its promises of two years ago, to give economy in state offices and tax reduction, cheap money and plenty of it, restoration of the credit of the state, open books and honesty and efficiency in administration. He declared that the only reductions in taxes made were for the railroad corporations primarily, then the banks and other corporations like the telephone and telegraph companies.

"Two years ago we were promised that the credit of the state would be restored," said Mr. Thoresen. "The calamity which has befallen the people of the state during the two years of the present administration is sufficient proof of failure. Not only this, but it would seem that a deliberate attempt has been made to destroy the credit of the state."

Simple Device Stirs Milk While Cooling
Fresh milk is often stirred in order to cool it, and this is usually done by hand, which is a slow and tiresome task. A simple device for doing the work automatically by water flowing into a tank, as shown in the drawing, can be made by any farmer from materials that are available everywhere.

The device consists of a shallow box, made of 1-in. pine boards. The ends are sloping and the box is divided into two equal parts by a board extending vertically in the center about 8 or 10 in. above the sides. The box is mounted at its center on a wooden axle, and a stirring paddle is attached to each end as indicated. These paddles are made from laths, planed smooth, and having a number of short crosspieces nailed on. In use, the milk cans are placed in the water tank and the stirring device arranged as shown in the drawing, the rocking-box being located under a water pipe so that the water first flows into one side and then into the other side alternately. As soon as one side of the box is filled the weight of the water causes the box to tilt over, and the other side of the box is then filled.

Convention Openings
Yesterday afternoon's session of the convention opened at 1:30 with community chorus singing led by Mrs. W. E. Fitzsimmons.

Reports of the delegates from the different clubs of the federation followed the announcements made by the various committees and officers. As the various reports of the different clubs were made the following girls from the Junior High School interpreted in a fitting manner the principal activity of the club. The following girls represented the different clubs as listed:

Bismarck: Ardeth Gussner, Bowbelle: Dancy Dickinson, Devils Lake: Betty Lofthouse, Dickinson: Agnes Nielsen, Fargo: Jeanne Sester, Grand Forks: Bernice Joslin, Jamestown: Grace Livdahl, Kenmare: Audrey Bohrer, Lisbon: Maxine Burnside, Mandan: Margaret White Eagle, From the Indian School: Jane Blackhouse, Business & Professional Women: Helen Bradley, Business Girls Club: Victoria Dunn, Valley City: Helen Robbins, Williston: Albertine Odne, Uncle Sam: Nettie Ellis of Mandan.

Miss Adella Prichard addresses the convention on the mission of the national federation to the local or state clubs and to the individual. Her talk was most thoroughly enjoyed by all privileged to hear her.

Miss Prichard spoke as one woman to another in her address and briefly told of the importance of the national federation to the state and individual club and the individual member, saying friendship, co-operation and good will were the keynote to the advantages to be derived from affiliation with the national organization; stating further that the national organization would never be any finer or any better than the individual member, herself. She pointed out that each member of the organization was either a liability or an asset and that none should care to be the former since they detracted not only from themselves but the entire organization.

Call for Service
Miss Prichard stated that though the club will have lighted its 40th birthday candle at the annual meeting of the National Federation to be held at West Baden, Indiana, this summer, the call had already reached the national officers to extend the helping hand to the business women in other lands across the seas and in the neighboring country of Canada, and that the American business and professional woman holds a particular and significant place in the world today, for are long the national organization when the national organization shall have to launch out and become international thereby benefitting the most by universal service. Women of Switzerland, Japan, China and Canada have asked for help and interested themselves to learn of the conditions surrounding the American business woman, who Miss Prichard maintains have received a rich heritage from those pioneer women who blazed the trail in the business, industrial and professional life of women and a great debt of gratitude is due these pioneers for their deep and abiding faith with a vision and courage to carry on.

The problem of the organized B. & P. W. Club as Miss Prichard sees it, is to help teach the young girl entering a business and professional life, factors entering into the successful service to that life by doing her part in creating a better business world for after all the great mission in life is service.

INDEPENDENT PARLEY HELD

Stutsman Meets Workers
From Several Counties
Minot, N. D., May 21.—Independent Republican leaders from McHenry, Burke, Divide, Mountrail and Ward counties conferred in Minot yesterday with W. H. Stutsman concerning plans for an intensive campaign preliminary to the June primary.

Mr. Stutsman told the gathering that there is imperative need for work on the part of independents. A lack of interest means a small vote, he explained, and it is the stay-at-home vote that results in minority candidates being elected.

"Get a full vote out June 25" will be a battle cry of the Real Republicans," he said. "Then, with the voters of the state in possession of the facts there need be no fear regarding the outcome."

The state headquarters will carry on an active campaign to get the facts before the people of every county in the state.

County organizations, according to Mr. Stutsman, will be perfected in every county in the state, taking the work down to the precincts.

"Everywhere I have been, I have found splendid sentiment," said Mr. Stutsman. "It is realized that work is needed and the men and women are taking control in wonderfully encouraging fashion."

Mr. Stutsman is holding a conference at Williston today.

This Little Dollar Goes To Market

Every year every family of your acquaintance spends about 70 per cent of its income just for living, exclusive of rent—so economic experts tell us. Think what this means—seven dollars out of every ten invested in food, clothing, household utilities and all the multitude of things that keep a family comfortable and happy.

It's a big job to spend so much money wisely and well. It requires careful business methods to get the best possible returns from each dollar that leaves the family purse.

The clever woman goes for help to the advertisements of her daily paper. There she finds a directory of buying and selling. She learns about the offerings of merchants and manufacturers. She compares values. She weighs quality and price. She takes this opportunity of judging and selecting almost everything she needs to feed, clothe, amuse, instruct and generally bring up her family.

Do you read the advertisements? You will find them willing and able to serve you in the daily business of purchase.

(Established 1873)

NOT DODGING IT

The action of the House in taking up the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, with a promise that the Senate also will do this, is welcome. Farm relief measures have been kicked from pillar to post for many months in Congress. Apparently a large number of the members of the National Legislature have been unwilling to face the music and make a definite decision. Representative Nicholas Longworth, the Republican House leader, however, has shown qualities hardly expected of him. His tact and his willingness to give every interest seeking recognition in Congress a fair hearing has won him considerable respect, among political opponents as well as political friends.

The McNary-Haugen bill is something new in governmental activities. It proposes a gigantic scheme designed to raise the price of farm products. Should it collapse the consequences would adversely affect both the national treasury and the farmers of the nation. There is no assurance that it would accomplish the desired effect. The bill is one which ought to be settled in Congress, after careful study, and not by the pressure of outside organizations to force a vote on the basis of sentiment or prejudice alone. It would have been sheer cowardice if Congress had dodged the issue. A little hard thinking on this measure will benefit the members, and perhaps the country at large.

SAVED

A serum that will reduce pneumonia deaths by a fourth or even a half is discovered by Dr. Lloyd B. Felton. This is not medical jazz like monkey gland stories. Felton's method has been tried out at Harvard school and announcement of its success is sanctioned by conservative medical leaders.

Felton is a young man from Ohio, only 32.

Banting, discoverer of the insulin remedy for diabetes, also is a young man.

Watch the generation that now is reaching mental maturity. It and the generation now in the cradle probably will stamp out tuberculosis and cancer.

CAUGHT

The inheritance tax was put into effect to raise revenue and to curb the concentration of too much wealth in a few families. We were on the road where 100 or fewer families eventually would own 95 per cent of the United States.

Cunning lawyers showed rich clients how to evade the inheritance tax by giving part of their wealth to their children before father's death. This dodging would be effectively and properly checked by the amendment to the tax law, as proposed by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. He would tax gifts increasingly up to 36 per cent on those of more than five million dollars.

INEVITABLE

The first big railroad to couple its rail service with an extensive motor truck system is the New York Central. It is already using trucks for package freight and rapidly increasing the mileage.

A former generation of railroad men would have fought motor truck competition by trying to strangle it. People are wiser now. They keep the old and adopt the new, using both—knowing that there is plenty of work for both. Steam railroads already are inadequate for transportation needs. Before long, progressive railroads will be establishing airplane routes.

BUNK

"Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations," is an old saying. It means, as you know, that in three generations of rich heirs the wealth of a family becomes dissipated—passes into other hands.

This old saying is bunkum in most cases. It is based on the supposition that all sons or grandsons of the rich are spendthrifts, which isn't true. Especially in our day, when crafty lawyers show rich clients how to freeze their money in trust funds so the principal cannot be touched even if the interest can be flung to the four winds.

FLAPJACKS

Mrs. Smith, mixing pancake batter, reached in the cupboard for another cupful of flour. By mistake she dipped into plaster-of-Paris. Her husband ate four of the plaster pancakes under their maple sirup disguise, before the mistake was discovered.

Latest report is that he's had no bad after-effects. This happened in Corning, N. Y., where Smith is a contractor. His experience suggests that his stomach must have had years of restaurant training.

FUNERAL

The death rate lately is quite a bit higher than a year ago. An average of 4200 Americans a day are passing on into the Hereafter.

As they exit from one side of the stage of life, newborn babies arrive to take their places. It's the same show, generation. The actors and scenery change, but the plot never. Whether life is a tragedy or a comedy; depends largely on our mental attitude. The choice of being happy or unhappy is up to us.

HIKER

He walks across the continent in 109 days—Harold L. Mackay, hiking from Los Angeles to Boston. Made the trip on a bet and beat the time limit by 11 days. Good roads made it possible. Fifty years ago the trip would have been next to impossible except by a man with an iron constitution and the ability to shoot straight and fast. Roads are good now, but the trip even today is no job for a weakling.

Some people will do anything to save money. In New York, a sick millionaire married his nurse.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

"COUNTERFEIT"

This is the word that a lifelong, staunch Republican, a former United States attorney general and member of President Taft's cabinet, and one of our foremost citizens, Geo. W. Wickersham, has used in characterizing Senator Lodge's improvisation of a "world court" which is offered by him as a substitute for the permanent court in current use by nations that fifty nations.

The proposed "world court" looks very like the permanent court. In fact, Mr. Lodge has taken almost bodily the statute establishing the permanent court.

The coin is the closest possible simulation. He has, however, in erasing the superscription of its present authority, made it valueless until at some remote time, if ever, the nations which have accepted the existing court organize a new authority.

It would be practically worthless, even if the senate were to put its stamp on it, and would only deceive the ignorant. The improvisation even holds out the hope of an association of nations—which is deferred only because of the impracticability of organizing out present an association independently of the League of Nations.

Mr. Wickersham uses the word "buffoonery" at first in speaking of the proposal of the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, but before he comes to the signature of his statesmanlike letter uses the graver word.

For one in such position as Senator Lodge to play the buffoon before the world is tragic enough. The charge is more serious.

We quote the language of the former attorney general, of Senator Lodge's own party:

"This new appraisal (of a party repeatedly advocating a world court) will be made by the people and I cannot doubt that they will readily distinguish between true coin and a counterfeit imitation, and will regard Mr. Lodge's proposed substitute as counterfeit, too obvious to be accepted even by the most simple."—New York Times.

GERMAN-PROMOTED WAR STRIKES

Count von Bernstorff, who was German ambassador to the United States until this country went to war in 1917, is a candidate for reelection to the reichstag on the Democratic ticket.

He is opposed by Herr Jahncke, a Nationalist. Jahncke, who was a German agent in this country during the period between the outbreak of war in Europe and the entrance of the United States into the conflict, his chief business being to foment harbor strikes in American munitions plants, to stop the export of war materials to the Allies.

He now charges that $20,000 was necessary to keep the strikes going, and that when he applied to Bernstorff for money the ambassador failed to reply to his request, and later declined to supply the fund. Consequently, Jahncke now attacks von Bernstorff as a traitor to the German people.

This is an interesting sidelight on activities in the United States before it went into the war.

There is no American concern over von Bernstorff's political fortunes, but it is important to know that large sums of money were being spent to promote strikes in this country.

Just why von Bernstorff refused to supply the funds does not appear. He has not yet replied to the charge.

Maybe the ambassadorial war chest was exhausted.

Or perhaps Jahncke's method of asking the embassy directly was too crude. Von Bernstorff in his book maintains that he made no disbursements for militant propaganda in this country.

Indoubtedly there was a buffer between the embassy and the "agents" who were stirring up labor troubles and destroying plants. Actually those most interested in the charge of Jahncke are the people who were induced to strike in the munitions plants.

It would be valuable to have a full story of how these troubles were managed and who got the money.—Washington Evening Star.

IN MOCK CONVENTION ASSEMBLED

This is mock convention time in the colleges. How many times Mr. Coolidge has already been nominated is not a matter of record, but his victories are growing numerous.

No man in national political life is quite safe from the academic lightning.

Once in each college generation comes this playing with practical politics. When it began no one knows.

The first nominee at Oberlin was Abraham Lincoln and that early job of abolition has been turning out presidential nominees at the rate of one per quadrannium ever since. It is a matter of pride for the staid conservators of tradition in most colleges that their conventions shall foreshadow in their chief nominee the work of the real convention a few weeks later.

This does not, however, discourage students who would rather be right than regular.

Insurgency is rampant. Disciples of LaPollette placard their intention of Wisconsinizing America.

The slogan "As we go so goes the nation" has no terror for student radicals who know exactly what's wrong with the body politic, having learned it perhaps in class.

Presbyterians Of South Give Relief

San Antonio, May 21.—Presbyterians of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States have under their care 646 candidates for the ministry and mission service, exclusive of women candidates for mission service, said the report of the executive committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, made today before the assembly in session here.

The committee aided 452 candidates for the ministry and mission service in the year just closed, 29 more than in the previous year, the report stated, and in this connection spent $77,002.

In our campaigns for equipment and endowment funds for schools and colleges of the church, the $1,350,000 sought for schools in Texas is becoming a reality," continued the report. "Collections amounting to more than $8,000,000 in other synods are reported."

The endowment fund for ministerial relief is now more than $1,470,000, and in keeping with the request of the assembly, effort is being made to increase this fund to $2,500,000. The total amount received from the endowment fund the past year was $21,621, which is $34,141 less the amount received the year before.

"Total receipts from all sources were $351,159, a decrease of $44,730."

Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery

An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. S. McCleary, the noted rectal specialist of Kansas City. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, caustics, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for twenty-four years and in more than eight thousand cases. The book is sent postpaid free to persons afflicted with piles or other rectal troubles who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, 2642 Parkway Sanitarium, Kansas City, Mo.

ARGENTINE SPECULATES IN PEARLS

Papeete, Tahiti, May 21.—There has been much speculation in pearls here since the close of the diving season in Hikueru, where an extraordinarily large number of pearls were taken. Besides unusually high prices for pearls of quality, there has been a quick market for seed pearls at figures unheard of in past years. The heavy increase in the demand comes, it is said, from Argentina.

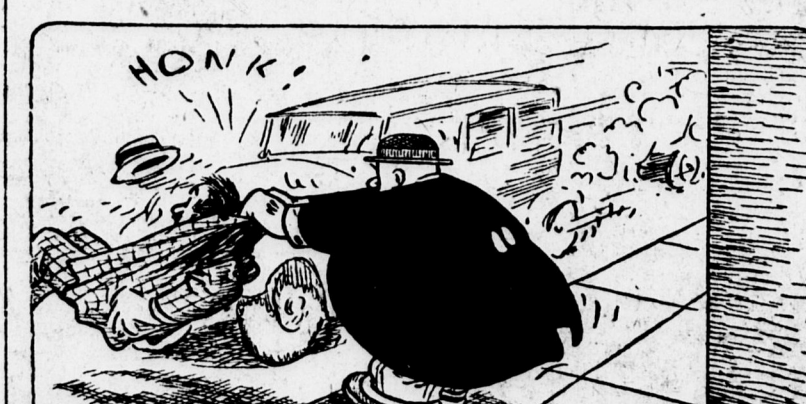

Redwood Forests Saved By Land Donations

San Francisco, May 21.—Redwood trees with a value of approximately $1,000,000 have been saved for all time in central and northern California through the efforts of the Save-the-Redwoods League, it was announced here recently by Dr. William F. Bade, counselor for the organization.

The league was organized less than four years ago. Its membership is made up of tree lovers who are fighting to save the giant trees for posterity. Individuals and lumber companies have donated lands valued at $500,000 to the movement. The state, Humboldt county and citizens have contributed $475,000 in money to the movement for purchasing other lands.

"And yet the movement has just begun," said Dr. Bade. "While 14 miles along the Redwood highway have been preserved, there are several hundred miles, many of them heavily timbered, which should be preserved. We look forward to the establishment of a national redwood park of at least 20,000 acres."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO RUTH ELLINGTON

Ruth, you are certainly a friend in time of trouble. Twice since I've been here I have been panicky for fear that I would not make the right decision quickly. You know I am rather slow to make up my mind about things, and when I found that Alice thought I should give her the pearls back I didn't know what to do. Your telegram, however, confirmed my idea that it would be wrong for me to give them to her. Afterward, when Jack sent me the telegram to have father draw on him I was again up in the air, and your wire, telling me to have father draw upon him again cleared up the situation.

I had rather a hard time with dad, however. He wanted to know what I wanted so much money for. He seemed to think that $6000 all at once was more money than one woman should have. I told him that Jack wanted me to do something for him with the money, and that he had asked me to have him draw on him for that amount, then dad could give it to me. Then he subsided, but I could see him looking at me very queerly—at least I could feel him doing so. Perhaps it was my guilty conscience, although you know, Ruth, that I did not really tell an untruth; Jack did want me to pay his debt. I am just letting him pay it to me instead of to father.

I went out for a walk in the afternoon toward the park, and whom should I meet, sauntering rather forlornly along, but Karl Whitney. He fell into step beside me, and we talked for a while on the weather and other very safe subjects, then he said:

"Leslie, will you do me a very great favor?"

"Anything I possibly can do, Karl."

"Then will you remember that however much Alice importunes you either to give or sell her those foolish pearl beads that I gave you, you will refuse to let her have them?"

I felt sorry for him, Ruth. I knew that it was something that he had hated to ask me to do. I knew that in his heart he felt that he was in some way being a traitor to the girl he was going to marry. Yet he didn't dare trust to my aversiveness. He knew I didn't care enough for the pearls as pearls to keep the string for its own sake.

"Alice will bring all sorts of arguments to bear upon you," he said. "I know this, because she told me she was going to. But, my dear, I could not bear even to see my wife wear those pearls, which all the years of my adolescence and young manhood had been something more to me than merely baubles which I should hang around the neck of the girl I loved. The mere gathering of them together kept your face aside, but I could see him looking at me very queerly—at least I could feel him doing so. Perhaps it was my guilty conscience, although you know, Ruth, that I did not really tell an untruth; Jack did want me to pay his debt. I am just letting him pay it to me instead of to father."

And then, Ruth, I told him that I had sent three of them to help my husband out of a very bad debt. "That is like you," he said softly. "But I will never let one of them go again, Karl, even for him."

Karl turned quickly, and held out his hand, said "Thank you, Leslie," and left me.

DANGERS OF A WEAK NAVY

BY ALBERT APPLE

Uncle Sam probably would gladly sink his entire navy if all other countries would do the same. When Uncle Sam called the disarmament conference in Washington, he was willing to reduce his navy as far as was possible with safety. And that was what happened.

Our naval experts figured that, to be reasonably well protected, our fighting fleet must be on an equal footing with England's and two-thirds stronger than Japan's. This program went into effect, giving Great Britain, United States and Japan the respective standings of 5-5-3.

Lately you have been reading a lot of controversy about the navy having fallen behind the 5-5-3 standard.

Just what its actual fighting strength is, must be confusing to most readers. It is weaker in some classes of ships than in others. Elevations of guns, determining how far a shell can be fired, also enters into the discussion.

The thing to keep in mind, however, is the navy as a whole—as an organization ready to give battle when attacked. In this connection, we must remember that no chain is stronger than its weakest link.

Our Navy Department announces that the relative fighting strength of the fleets of Britain, America and Japan is 5-4-3.

Some experts go as far as to claim that the ratio is 5-1-3—that in actual battle strength our fleet is only a third as strong as Japan's and a fifth as strong as Britain's. This is the extreme view.

The fact remains, however, that our navy is claimed to have become weakened—fallen below the relative standing that our best experts consider necessary for safety.

If, as claimed, the navy is weaker than is necessary for national safety, the thing to do is to bring it back up to its strength as agreed on at the disarmament conference—and do it quickly.

Japan is building 84 fighting ships with a total displacement of 178,065 tons. And Uncle Sam is building only 24 ships with tonnage of 64,494. This obviously means that we are headed toward even a weaker naval standing than at present.

Congressional watchdogs of the public treasury, incidentally, before spending a lot of tax money should ascertain where truth ends and militaristic propaganda begins.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

MISTER BAGS SENDS SOME BILLS

The next day the old cronies met as usual in Mister Bags' store in the woods.

Old Daddy Cracknuts came in first. "Howdy, Mister Bags," said he. "Howdy, Nancy! Howdy, Nick. Nice morning this morning."

"Yes, it is, Daddy," said Nancy, noticing that Daddy took the chair nearest to the cracker barrel.

"I'll just rest a spell, if you don't mind," said Daddy. "I'm all tuckered out today. Ma's been clearing house."

"Think you'll stay away until it's over, do you?" laughed Mister Bags, noticing that Daddy had absently reached into the cracker barrel and begun to munch at a soda cracker.

At that minute the door opened with a tingling and in came Mister Groundhog.

"I need a match, Mister Bags," he wheezed. "I just thought I'd drop in and get one if you have any handy. Thanks! My old pipe doesn't draw any too well. Why, hello, Daddy! You're out bright and early this morning."

So Daddy told him all about his wife's house-cleaning, and while he was listening, Mister Groundhog picked up a cracker and began to eat it.

At that minute the door opened again and in came Ben Bunny. "Please, may I use your telephone, Mister Bags?" he asked. "I would like to telephone to my cousin across the meadow and ask him how the sass-patch garden is coming along. The lettuce ought to be big enough to eat by this time."

"Certainly," said Mister Bags obligingly. "Help yourself, please. When he was through telephoning, he came over to the cracker barrel and dipped in."

Then came Ringtail Coon to look at Mister Bags' thermometer and talk about the weather.

Then came Mister Muskrat, and next came Mister Chipmunk, and

War Mothers Hear Report of N. D. Convention

St. Lincoln Chapter of American War Mothers held an interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Peter Reid last evening. The Welfare committee reported visiting and sending flowers to ex-service men who are ill in the hospitals. The Memorial Day committee was instructed to draw on the funds of the chapter for Decoration Day. A fund of $75 was set aside by the chapter to be used for the State Memorial tablet. It was decided to hold a silver tea in the near future at the home of Mrs. William Webb to which the women of the city would be invited to attend. The proceeds of this tea will be donated to the fund for the State Memorial. The women of the city will welcome this opportunity of having a share in the memorial to those serving in the World War. The date for the silver tea will be announced later. A special committee reported sending a shrub to Kenmare to be planted in the city park.

A report of the annual state convention at Enderlin was made by the delegates who attended also a report regarding the state Memorial tablets, which are to be erected on each side of the Liberty Memorial Bridge.

The following notes taken from the report of the state convention may prove interesting to many.

The annual convention of the American War Mothers convened in the Methodist Church of Enderlin, May 14 and 15. War Mother, Mrs. A. E. Jones, presiding. The convention opened by the singing of America and the invocation by Rev. Nelson, pastor of the church. A cordial welcome was given, the mothers by the Mayor of Enderlin, an ex-service man. At the conclusion of his address he presented the delegates with a key to the city. Mrs. A. C. McLane of Kenmare reported in a few well chosen remarks.

Mrs. D. H. Allen of Joliet, Illinois, past national auditor of the organization, was an honored guest of the convention and made a most interesting and inspiring address.

Twenty-one voting delegates were present. The chapters represented were: Enderlin, Lisbon, Kenmare, Mandan, Cannon Ball, Fort Lincoln, and this city. The annual address of the state war mother, Mrs. Jones was an inspiring talk, dealing service, unity, good citizenship and the assistance in the education of our youth.

The officers elected were: State War Mother, Mrs. A. C. McLane, of Kenmare; first vice war mother, Mrs. W. C. Cashman, of this city; recording secretary, Mrs. Perry of Crosby; historian, Mrs. Smith of Lisbon; auditor, Mrs. Underwood of Enderlin. All other officers being held over.

Throughout the convention, the delegates were delightfully entertained with music, both vocal and instrumental from the talent of Enderlin. The social features were a luncheon given Wednesday noon served by the members of the Legion Auxiliary. A banquet at 6:30 at which the decorations were red poppies. Vocal numbers and spicy toasts and music by a seven-piece orchestra furnished the entertainment.

At the close of the convention on Thursday at 1 p. m., the visitors were taken to the City Park where a picnic luncheon was served. The Enderlin chapter is to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which they entertained the Sixth annual convention of the American War Mothers. The Mandan Chapter invited the convention to meet in that city next year and the invitation was accepted.

MORE RESPECT FOR MOTHERS IS ESSAY URGE

Prize Winning Essay in Elks Contest, by Norris Fitch, Is Given Here

WHAT GREAT MEN SAID

Editor's note—The prize winning essay of Norris Fitch who received the cash prize of $7.50 offered by the Elks' lodge for the best essay on Mother's Day is printed as written. The essay will be forwarded to the state committee by the local lodge.

Norris is a member of the graduating class and his essay was prepared as a theme in the English IV class.

MOTHER'S DAY
The second Sunday in May has been set aside as a day for celebrating our mothers. The idea was originated by Miss Anna Jarvis in 1908.

One by one the governors of the various states issued proclamations setting aside the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day. Finally the President issued a proclamation to that effect.

Mother's Day is the day set aside for the reverence and recognition of our mothers. It is a day for appreciation rather than celebration of our mothers—our best friends.

One's mother is the guiding hand that points out the path of life for one to follow from early childhood and even beyond. She is constantly by your side directing and lending you moral assistance in times of trouble. She is your best pal during those delicate years in which one's ideals being formed and one's character is being molded into the shape which will determine that person's character.

Mothers are usually taken as a matter of course and are not given the credit and respect due to them. It is a fault of lack of recognition rather than of willful ingratitude. One would feel insulted if it was intimated that he showed a lack of appreciation toward his mother. Nevertheless in a broad sense it is partially true although it is not intentional.

Who was it who sat up all night by your bedside while you had the croup? Or perhaps you surely can remember who found and gathered up your playthings and later on in your life located your various misplaced articles of clothing and your baseballs and mitts.

Of course you know it—it was your mother.

If one glances at the biography of any great man (or woman) of history it will be almost invariably apparent that at some early period of his life he has been touched and influenced by the soft love and devotion of his mother to him and that she was the one who gave him the impetus in the right direction in life.

Such men as Dickens, Macaulay, Lincoln, Napoleon, Tennyson and Longfellow all paid stirring tributes to their mothers. Lincoln said, "All that I am or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother." Napoleon once said, "The future destiny of the child is always the work of the mother." H. W. Beecher said, "The mother's heart is the child's school room." These few affirmations show the attitude of great men towards mothers. There are many tributes to mothers, but they all have the same primary meaning that the mother is the essential factor in the development of the child.

They may never win any great battles or become famous statesmen but the single word, "Mother" contains more tender feeling than can ever be expressed in mere words. The word, "Mother" symbolizes service.

The finest way in which we can observe Mother's Day is to show an increased devotion towards the greatest hero of them all—your mother. On Mother's Day for our part of the recognition of this day, let us firmly resolve to show our appreciation of our mothers by serving them, as nearly as possible, as they have served us in the past.

MORE RESPECT FOR MOTHERS IS ESSAY URGE

Prize Winning Essay in Elks Contest, by Norris Fitch. Is Given Here

WHAT GREAT MEN SAID

Editor's note—The prize winning essay of Norris Fitch who received the cash prize of $7.50 offered by the Elks' lodge for the best essay on Mother's Day is printed as written. The essay will be forwarded to the state committee by the local lodge.

Norris is a member of the graduating class and his essay was prepared as a theme in the English IV class.

MOTHER'S DAY
The second Sunday in May has been set aside as a day for celebrating our mothers. The idea was originated by Miss Anna Jarvis in 1908.

One by one the governors of the various states issued proclamations setting aside the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day. Finally the President issued a proclamation to that effect.

Mother's Day is the day set aside for the reverence and recognition of our mothers. It is a day for appreciation rather than celebration of our mothers—our best friends. One's mother is the guiding hand that points out the path of life for one to follow from early childhood and even beyond. She is constantly by your side directing and lending you moral assistance in times of trouble. She is your best pal during those delicate years in which one's deals being formed and one's character is being molded into the shape which will determine that person's character.

Mothers are usually taken as a matter of course and are not given the credit and respect due to them. It is a fault of lack of recognition rather than of willful ingratitude. One would feel insulted if it was intimated that he showed a lack of appreciation toward his mother. Nevertheless in a broad sense it is partially true although it is not intentional.

When we sit up at night by your bedside while you have the croup? Or perhaps you surely can remember who found and gathered up your playthings and later on in your life located your various misplaced articles of clothing and your baseballs and mitts.

Of course you know it—it was your mother. If one glances at the biography of any great man (or woman) of history it will be almost invariably apparent that at some early period of his life he has been touched and influenced by the loving devotion of his mother to him and that she was the one who gave him the impetus in the right direction in life.

Such men as Dickens, Macaulay, Lincoln, Napoleon, Tennyson and Longfellow all paid a grateful tribute to their mothers. Lincoln said, "All that I am or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother." Napoleon once said, "The future destiny of the child is always the work of the mother." H. W. Beecher said, "The mother's heart is the child's school room." These few short statements and many more similar ones show the attitude of great men towards mothers. There are many tributes to mothers, but they all have the same primary meaning that the mother is the essential factor in the development of the child.

They may never win any great battles or become famous statesmen but the single word, "Mother" contains more tender feeling than can ever be expressed in mere words. The word, "Mother" symbolizes service.

The finest way in which we can observe Mother's Day is to show an increased devotion towards the greatest hero of them all—your mother. On Mother's Day for our part of the recognition of this devotion we firmly resolve to show our appreciation of our mothers by serving them, as nearly as possible, as they have served us in the past.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

NOT DODGING IT

The action of the House in taking up the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, with a promise that the Senate also will do this, is welcome. Farm relief measures have been kicked from pillar to post for many months in Congress. Apparently a large number of the members of the National Legislature have been unwilling to face the music and make a definite decision. Representative Nicholas Longworth, the Republican House leader, however, has shown qualities hardly expected of him. His tact and his willingness to give every interest seeking recognition in Congress a fair hearing has won him considerable respect, among political opponents as well as political friends.

The McNary-Haugen bill is something new in governmental activities. It proposes a gigantic scheme designed to raise the price of farm products. Should it collapse the consequences would adversely affect both the national treasury and the farmers of the nation. There is no assurance that it would accomplish the desired effect. The bill is one which ought to be settled in Congress, after careful study, and not by the pressure of outside organizations to force a vote on the basis of sentiment or prejudice alone. It would have been sheer cowardice if Congress had dodged the issue. A little hard thinking on this measure will benefit the members, and perhaps the country at large.

SAVED

A serum that will reduce pneumonia deaths by a fourth or even a half is discovered by Dr. Lloyd B. Felton. This is not medical jargon like monkey gland stories. Felton's method has been tried out at Harvard school and announcement of its success is sanctioned by conservative medical leaders.

Felton is a young man from Ohio, only 32. Banting, discoverer of the insulin remedy for diabetes, also is a young man.

Watch the generation that now is reaching mental maturity. It and the generation now in the cradle probably will stamp out tuberculosis and cancer.

CAUGHT

The inheritance tax was put into effect to raise revenue and curb the concentration of too much wealth in a few families. We were on the road where 100 or fewer families eventually would own 95 per cent of the United States.

Cunning lawyers showed rich clients how to evade the inheritance tax by giving part of their wealth to their children before father's death. This dodging would be effectively and properly checked by the amendment to the tax law, as proposed by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. He would tax gifts increasingly up to 36 per cent on those of more than five million dollars.

INEVITABLE

The first big railroad to couple its rail service with an extensive motor truck system is the New York Central. It is already using trucks for package freight and rapidly increasing the mileage.

A former generations of railroad men would have fought motor truck competition by trying to strangle it. People are wiser now. They keep the old and adopt the new, using both—knowing that there is plenty of work for both. Steam railroads already are inadequate for transportation needs. Before long, progressive railroads will be establishing airplane routes.

BUNK

"Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations," is an old saying. It means, as you know, that in three generations of rich heirs the wealth of a family becomes dissipated—passes into other hands.

This old saying is bunkum in most cases. It is based on the supposition that all sons or grandsons of the rich are spendthrifts, which isn't true. Especially in our day, when crafty lawyers show rich clients how to freeze their money in trust funds so the principal cannot be touched even if the interest can be flung to the four winds.

FLAPJACKS

Mrs. Smith, mixing pancake batter, reached in the cupboard for another cupful of flour. By mistake she dipped into plaster-of-Paris. Her husband ate four of the plaster pancakes under their maple sirup disguise, before the mistake was discovered.

Latest report is that he's had no bad after-effects. This happened in Corning, N. Y., where Smith is a contractor. His experience suggests that his stomach must have had years of restaurant training.

FUNERAL

The death rate lately is quite a bit higher than a year ago. An average of 4200 Americans a day are passing on into the Hereafter.

As they exit from one side of the stage of life, newborn babies arrive to take their places. It's the same show, generation. The actors and scenery change, but the plot never. Whether life is a tragedy or a comedy, depends largely on our mental attitude. The choice of being happy or unhappy is up to us.

HIKER

He walks across the continent in 109 days—Harold L. Mackay, hiking from Los Angeles to Boston. Made the trip on a bet and beat the time limit by 11 days. Good roads made it possible. Fifty years ago the trip would have been next to impossible except by a man with an iron constitution and the ability to shoot straight and fast. Roads are good now, but the trip even today is no job for a weakling.

Some people will do anything to save money. In New York, a sick millionaire married his nurse.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

"COUNTERFEIT"

This is the word that a lifelong, staunch Republican, a former United States attorney general and member of President Taft's cabinet, and one of our foremost citizens, Gen. W. Wickersham, has used in characterizing Senator Lodge's improvisation of a "world court" which is offered by him as a substitute for the permanent court in current use by more than fifty nations.

The proposed "world court" looks very like the permanent court. In fact, Mr. Lodge has taken almost bodily the statute establishing the permanent court.

The coin is the closest possible simulation. He has, however, in erasing the superscription of its present authority, made it valueless until at some remote time, if ever, the nation which have accepted the existing court organize a new authority.

It would be practically worthless, even if the senate were to put its stamp on it, and would only deceive the ignorant. The improvisation even holds out the hope of an association of nations—which is deferred only because of the impracticability of organizing it—present an association independently of the League of Nations—and yet in the same document proposes to establish a new world court independently of the existing world court.

Mr. Wickersham uses the word "buffoonery" at first in speaking of the proposal, and the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, but before he comes to the signature of his statesmanlike letter uses the graver word.

For one in such position as Senator Lodge to play the buffoon before the world is tragic enough. The charge is more serious.

We quote the language of the former attorney general, of Senator Lodge's own party:

This new appraisal (of a party repeatedly advocating a world court) will be made by the people and I cannot doubt that they will readily distinguish between true coin and counterfeit imitation, and will regard Mr. Lodge's proposed substitute as counterfeit, too obvious to be accepted even by the most simple. —New York Times.

GERMAN-PROMOTED WAR STRIKES

Count von Bernstorff, who was German ambassador to the United States until this country went to war in 1917, is a candidate for election to the Reichstag on the Democratic ticket.

He is opposed by Herr Jahncke, a Nationalist. Jahncke, it seems, was a German agent in this country during the period between the outbreak of war in Europe and the entrance of the United States into the conflict, his chief business being to forward harbor strikes in American munitions ports, to stop the export of war material, to the Allies.

He now charges that $20,000 was necessary to keep the strikes going, and that when he applied to Bernstorff for money the ambassador failed to reply.

After declining to supply the fund, consequently, Jahncke now attacks von Bernstorff as a traitor to the German people.

This is an interesting sidelight on activities in the United States before it went into the war.

There is no American concern over von Bernstorff's political tactics. It is important to know that large sums of money were being spent to promote strikes in this country.

Just why von Bernstorff refused to supply the funds does not appear. He has not yet replied to the charge.

Maybe the ambassadorial war effort was exhausted.

Or perhaps Jahncke's method of asking the embassy directly was too crude. Von Bernstorff in his book maintains that he made no disbursements for militant propaganda in this country.

Undoubtedly there was a buffer between the embassy and the "agents" who were stirring up labor troubles and destroying plants. Actually those most interested in the charge of Jahncke are the people who were induced to strike in the munitions ports.

It would be valuable to have a full story of how these trouble-makers were managed and who got the money. —Washington Evening Star.

IN MOCK CONVENTION ASSEMBLED

This is mock convention time in the college. How many times Mr. Coolidge has already been nominated is not a matter of record, but his victories are growing numerous.

No man in national political life is quite safe from the academic lightning.

Once in each college generation comes this playing with practical politics. When it began no one knows.

The first nominee at Oberlin was Abraham Lincoln and that early "otter of abolition has been turning out presidential nominees at the rate of one per quadrillion ever since. It is a matter of pride for the solid conservatives of tradition in most colleges that their conventions shall foreshadow in their chief nominee the work of the real convention a few weeks later.

This does not, however, discourage students who would rather be right than regular.

Insurgency is rampant. Principles of Lafayette placed their intention of Wisconsin's Andrew.

The slogan "As we go so goes the nation" has no terror for student radicals who know exactly what's wrong with the body politic, having learned it perhaps in class.

An excellent idea, these college late mock conventions. They bring theories to the test. They furnish a ray of hope, too, for statesmen whose only chance for preferment in these querulous times lies in some one's performance.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Presbyterians Of South Give Relief

San Antonio, May 21.—Presbyterians of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States have under their care 640 candidates for the ministry and mission service, exclusive of women candidates for mission service, said the report of the executive committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, made today before the assembly in session here.

The committee aided 452 candidates for the ministry and mission service in the year just closed, 29 more than in the previous year, the report stated, and in this connection spent $77,992.

"In our campaigns for equipment and endowment funds for schools and colleges of the church, the $1,350,000 sought for schools in Texas is becoming a reality," continued the report. "Collections amounting to more than $8,000,000 in other areas are reported."

"The endowment fund for ministerial relief is now more than $1,470,000, and in keeping with the request of the assembly, effort is being made to increase this fund to $5,500,000. The total amount received from the endowment fund the past year was $21,621, which is $34,141 less the amount received the year before."

"Total receipts from all sources were $351,159, a decrease of $44,730."

This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for twenty-four years and in more than eight thousand cases. The book is sent post-paid free to persons afflicted with piles or other rectal troubles who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McClary, 2666 Parkview Sanitarium, Kansas City, Mo.

ARGENTINE SPECULATES IN PEARLS

Papeete, Tahiti, May 21.—There has been much speculation in pearls here since the close of the diving season in Hikuera, where an extraordinarily large number of pearls were taken. Besides unusually high prices for pearls of quality, there has been a quick market for seed pearls at figures unheard of in past years. The heavy increase in the demand comes, it is said, from Argentina.

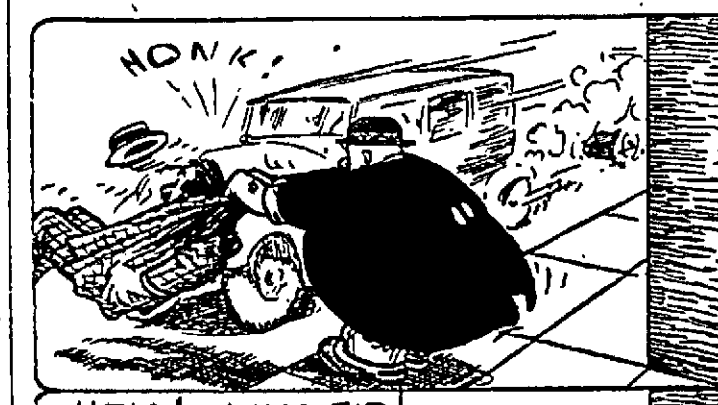

Redwood Forests Saved By Land Donations

San Francisco, May 21.—Redwood trees with a value of approximately $1,000,000 have been saved for all time in central and northern California through the efforts of the Save-the-Redwoods League, it was announced here recently by Dr. William F. Bade, counselor for the organization.

The league was organized less than four years ago. Its membership is made up of tree lovers who are fighting to save the giant trees for posterity. Individuals and lumber companies have donated lands valued at $600,000 to the movement. The state, Humboldt county and citizens have contributed $470,000 in money to the movement for purchasing other lands.

"And yet the movement has just begun," said Dr. Bade. "While 14 miles along that Redwood highway have been preserved, there are several hundred miles, many of them heavily timbered, which should be preserved. We look forward to the establishment of a national redwood park of at least 20,000 acres."

The Tangle

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO RUTH ELLINGTON

Ruth, you are certainly a friend in time of trouble. Twice since I've been here I have been panicky for fear that I would not make the right decision quickly. You know I am rather slow to make up my mind about things, and when I found that Alice thought I should give her the pearls back I didn't know what to do. Your telegram, however, convinced my idea that it would be wrong for me to give them to her. Afterward, when Jack sent me the telegram to have father draw on him I was again up in the air, and your wire telling me to have father draw upon him again cleared up the situation.

I had rather a hard time with dad, however. He wanted to know what I wanted to much money for. He seemed to think that $6000 all at one time was more money than one woman should have. I told him that Jack wanted me to do something for him with the money, and that he had asked me to have him draw on him for that amount, then dad could give it to me. Then he said, but I could not let him looking at me very queerly—at least I could feel him doing so. Perhaps it was my guilty conscience, although you know, Ruth, that I did not really tell an untruth; Jack did want me to pay his debt. I am just letting him pay it to me instead of to father.

I went out for a walk in the afternoon toward the park, and when I should I met a suitor rather forlornly along, but Karl Whitney. He fell into step beside me, and we talked for a while on the weather and other very safe subjects, then he said:

"Leslie, will you do me a very great favor?"

"Anything I possibly can do, Karl." "Then will you remember that however much Alice importunes you either to give or sell her those foolish pearl beads that I gave you, you will refuse to let her have them?" I felt sorry for him, Ruth. I knew that it was something that he had hated to ask me to do. I knew that in his heart he felt that he was in some way being a traitor to the girl he was going to marry. Yet he didn't dare trust to my avariciousness. He knew I didn't care enough for the pearls as pearls to keep the string for my own use.

"Alice will bring all sorts of arguments to bear upon you," he said. "I know this, because she told me she was going to. But, my dear, I could not bear even to see my wife wearing those pearls, which all the years of my adolescence and young manhood had been something more to me than merely baubles which I should hang around the neck of the girl I loved." The mere gathering of them together kept your face side, but I could not let him looking at me very queerly—at least I could feel him doing so. Perhaps it was my guilty conscience, although you know, Ruth, that I did not really tell an untruth; Jack did want me to pay his debt. I am just letting him pay it to me instead of to father.

I went out for a walk in the afternoon toward the park, and when I should I met a suitor rather forlornly along, but Karl Whitney. He fell into step beside me, and we talked for a while on the weather and other very safe subjects, then he said:

DANGERS OF A WEAK NAVY
BY ALBERT APPLE

Uncle Sam probably would gladly sink his entire navy if all other countries would do the same. When Uncle Sam called the disarmament conference in Washington, he was willing to reduce his navy as far as was possible with safety. And that was what happened.

Our naval experts figured that, to be reasonably well protected, our fighting fleet must be on an equal footing with England's and two-thirds stronger than Japan's. This program went into effect, giving Great Britain, United States and Japan the respective standings of 5-5-3.

Lately you have been reading a lot of controversy about the navy having fallen behind the 5-5-3 standard.

Just what its actual fighting strength is, must be confusing to most readers. It is weaker in some classes of ships than in others. Elevations of guns, determining how far a shell can be fired, also enters into the discussion.

The thing to keep in mind, however, is the navy as a whole—as an organization ready to give battle when attacked. In this connection, we must remember that no chain is stronger than its weakest link.

Our Navy Department announces that the relative fighting strength of the fleets of Britain, America and Japan is 5-4-3.

Some experts go as far as to claim that the ratio is 5-1-3—that in actual battle strength our fleet is only a third as strong as Japan's and a fifth as strong as Britain's. This is the extreme view.

The fact remains, however, that our navy is claimed to have become weakened—fallen below the relative standing that our best experts consider necessary for safety.

If, as claimed, the navy is weaker than is necessary for national safety, the thing to do is to bring it back up to its strength as agreed on at the disarmament conference—and do it quickly.

Japan is building 84 fighting ships with a total displacement of 178,065 tons. And Uncle Sam is building only 24 ships with tonnage of 64,494. This obviously means that we are headed toward even a weaker naval standing than at present.

Congressional watchdogs of the public treasury, incidentally, before spending a lot of tax money should ascertain where truth ends and militaristic propaganda begins.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

MISTER BAGS SENDS SOME BILLS

The next day the old cronies met as usual in Mister Bags' store in the woods.

Old Daddy Cracknuts came in first.

"Rowdy, Mister Bags," said he. "Howdy, Nancy! Howdy, Nick. Nice morning this morning."

"Yes, it is, Daddy," said Nancy noticing that Daddy took the chair nearest to the cracker barrel.

"Just cast a spell, if you don't mind," said Daddy. "I'm all tuckered out today. Ma's been clearing the house."

"Think you'll stay away until it's over, do you?" laughed Mister Bags, noticing that Daddy had absently reached into the cracker barrel and begun to munch at a soda cracker.

At that minute the door opened with a dingling and in came Mister Groundhog.

"I need a match, Mister Bags," he wheezed. "I just thought I'd drop in and get one if you have any handy. Thanks! My old pipe doesn't draw any too well. Why, hello, Daddy! You're out bright and early this morning."

So Daddy told him all about his wife's house-cleaning, and while he was listening, Mister Groundhog picked up a cracker and began to eat it.

At that minute the door opened again and in came Ben Bunny.

"Please, may I use your telephone, Mister Bags?" he asked. "I would like to telephone to my cousin across the meadow and ask him how the sea-patch garden is coming along. The lettuce ought to be big enough to eat by this time."

"Certainly," said Mister Bags obligingly. "Help yourself!"

When he was through telephoning, he came over to the cracker barrel and dipped in.

Then came Ringtail Coon to look at Mister Bags' thermometer and talk about the weather.

Then came Mister Muskrat, and next came Mister Chipmunk, and next came old Mossey Mud Turtle, and before long the store was full of gossip, all talking at once and dipping into the cracker barrel.

Nick stood by with a little book and every time anybody dipped down for a cracker he put a mark beside his name.

The next morning when Daddy Cracknuts opened his mail, there was a bill from Mister Bags.

It said: May 10—15 crackers—15c.

When Mister Bunny opened his mail he got a bill, too. It said: May 10—25 crackers—25c.

And Mister Groundhog got a bill and Ringtail Coon got a bill and so did all of them.

They were all hopping mad and rushed to the little store in the woods at once.

"Why, I never bought any crackers here in my life!" said Daddy Cracknuts.

"Neither did I! Neither did we!" cried the others.

STINNES HOBBY WAS BOOKS

Berlin, May 21.—The late Hugo Stinnes had but one hobby outside of his devotion to his broadly scattered business interests. That was the collection of rare books.

Mr. Stinnes was especially fond of having "number one" in limited and luxurious editions of famous books, and would pay almost any price for such a volume. He left a rare collection of books of this character which now falls to his oldest son, Dr. Edmund Stinnes, who is also a book-lover.

PIRATES BEAT GIANTS, 12 TO 3

Hit McGraw Pitchers Hard in National Contest

Chicago, May 21.—Pittsburgh hammered three pitchers for 17 hits today, the Pirates winning 12 to 3. Don McGraw, star second baseman, was knocked out of the box.

Van Klee held the Pirates to five hits, and the Chicago Cubs won 7 to 1. All of the hits made off of Klee were for extra bases. Mullan hit a home run in the ninth.

All American League games were postponed because of rain.

The American Association sprung into a little more prominence due to the postponement of the American League games. The rampaging Kansas City Blues beat Minneapolis 13 to 0. Columbus beat Toledo 7 to 0 and Cliff Mangan won his fifth successive game in St. Paul's victory over Milwaukee, 7 to 1.

BISMARCK WINS FROM WILTON

Bismarck high school baseball team defeated Wilton high school last evening by a score of 14 to 6. The local hitters enjoyed a good day, everybody getting in on the hitting line. Livdahl and Shepard produced home runs for the locals. Kiehl pitched a steady game for Bismarck, with Shepard behind the bat.

Mandan high wants the local high team to play there on Saturday and the game probably will be played.

YOUNG STRIBLING WINS EASILY

Atlanta, Ga., May 21.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, the Georgia school boy sensation won the decision over Dan O'Dowd, Boston lightweight in a 10-round bout here last night. The fight was slow and uninteresting with Stribling pushing his opponent most of the way.

The only real action came in the sixth round when Stribling sent O'Dowd to the canvas with a hard right to the jaw. The Boston fighter, however, was on his feet again in an instant.

A Mandolin Note And Cannon Fire

Ted Ray, Giant of Britain Links and Master of Delicate Shots, Suggests This Combination

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Ted Ray, the giant Britisher, all the while strong in his hands and gives every indication of being close to the form that brought him the American open championship at Inverness in 1920. Ray won the recent storm professional tournament at Richmond, beating George Jones, one of the patriarchs of British golf, in the final.

Ray played balling to win over Jones, he took the lead at the 18th hole and was up at the 19th for the last putt. Ray's putt was a 10-foot shot, which he made in 10 seconds. Against the time of golf, that's a record. The time of golf is 10 seconds for a 10-foot putt. Jones, who is well known as a good shot, was well behind Ray, gave Ray a thrilling fight and was leading by a hole with but three holes to go when the Towing Ted over him. Ray is noted for his progress driving, yet it was his art around and on the greens that won for him over Jones. A perfect run shot brought him the seventh hole and a dropped shot over a bunker that dropped dead in the eighteenth and the match.

Ray's lack of form and disdain for technique as the masters practice it are obvious. He offsets a chronic weakness of the tee by extraordinary ability to recover from the rough, in which particular phase of the game he has no superior.

Jones, however, the most famous figure in the game, is a history of size and a thunderous swat, the type of man and player that suggests cannon fire and steel structural work.

By no stretch of the imagination is it possible to picture Ray excelling in matters of defense and offense. Yet he is one of the finest short shot makers in the game and one of the greatest putters in the world.

Swedish Airmen Set Up Record For Safety

Stockholm, May 21.—Swedish airmen, anxious to prove to the public that there is a remarkably small margin of danger in their occupation, have just figured out that the aviators of Sweden have actually flown a distance equal to encircling the globe 11 1/2 times for every fatality.

This record of safety surpasses that of the United States, according to Col. E. J. Erickson, of the Swedish Army, who says that country are more than three times as frequent for the one fatality. Swedish statistics show that the Swedes fly 3,000 hours without a fatal accident, as against the Americans 1,170 hours.

Commercial flying in Sweden has been given a new impetus by the decision of the Public Department to support and utilize the new air service between Malmo and Hamburg. The flying time to London will now be only six hours.

Billy Evans Says

If ever a player came to the majors, as a later measuring up to big league standards, that individual was Paul Strand. No doubt, pressing hard, Strand, as he realized great things were expected of him.

The case of the Boone is somewhat typical of that of Strand. Boone came to the Boston Red Sox from the Texas League, a mighty fast minor league organization.

In that company Boone batted for better than .400, a most impressive feat. It was hoped he would continue his fine work at the bat in the big show.

Boone got away to a great start. His hitting featured the early play of the Red Sox. Then he slumped and recently, like Strand, he was benched.

That is perhaps the best argument that might be offered for the fact that a majority of the best players fail to live up to the hope of their brass agents and minor league averages.

WHEREVER SUN SHINES THERE IS SENTIMENT

Berlin, May 21.—The prosperity of popular songwriters in America has aroused the caustic criticism of a writer in the Berlin Montagspost. He declares that all the American popular songs about love and mother are written by a lot of charlatans who fool the tired, money-mad American public, a people of "no real feeling, but full of mimicry sentimentality." The success of many of the American songs and dance tunes in Europe even in cultured Germany also seems to be extremely annoying to this writer.

A German music publisher, when asked about the kind of songs Germans like, laughed and replied that the taste all over the world in popular songs is about the same. In his opinion love and mother are just as "sure-fire" in Germany as they are in the United States. He cited the long run in the American film, "Mother," is having in the German cities and predicted the world would never tire of the sentimental mother and the golden-haired maiden in song, story and drama.

PLEADS FOR RIVER ROAD BEING INCLUDED IN FEDERAL AID HIGHWAY

Port Yates Man Gives New Reasons For Building Up Road Urged By Bismarck Citizens, For West of the River—Important Part of Capital to Capital Highway

(By Frank Fiske, Port Yates, N. D.)

The good readers of the Mandan and Bismarck papers may have noticed some reference of late, under sundry captions, regarding the routing of the Capital to Capital Highway south to the Sioux Lake bridge. With some of these readers this has become a personal matter, with others, no matter at all, and with the newspapers an interesting display of editorial eloquence. Conferences have been held between taxpayers, travelers, County Commissioners and good roads men, all because a route that will please all has not been agreed upon, as this writing.

It is a matter of a fugitive, and the traveler, the same old country roads, fording the same old creeks, and crossing the unwarranted delay in building roads. We, of the south country, understand that the big bone of contention is where we will be required to enter Mandan or whether we will enter Bismarck. Down here in Sioux County a fight is on over the routing of the road from Cannon Ball or Selen to Selridge, or from Selen or Cannon Ball to Port Yates, or vice versa. We hear that both routes will be used, which is pleasing, providing a bridge is built over the Cannon Ball at or near the Parkin Ranch. Our greatest desire is that this bridge be built, it is very necessary and can be built at a great saving to taxpayers.

At this time, by government aid, regardless of the fight between Bismarck and Mandan or between the factions in Sioux County, nothing should be put in the way of this bridge.

Plea For River Road

Throughout the controversy, personal considerations have hogged the main issue. The plan of the originators of the Capital to Capital Highway to Port Yates route, was to provide a highway that would appeal to the traveling public—the tourist—as well as to serve the needs of the people living along it. And in order to make this appeal to the tourist a highway must have something more than ordinary interest to commend it. It should have something of historical value. It should have something of scenic grandeur. And the needs of the present must be weighed with those of the future. The far-sighted citizens of this state are doing much toward preserving places of historical and scenic interest, for here lies the romance of the past. On these spots the traditions of our great state rest. A utilitarian world may strive to shut out romance and tradition, but herein lies the tie that binds us to the land we love. Romance and tradition are left but a place in which to live.

As one who loves to ruminate upon the glories of pioneer days, I rise to speak a word for the historic and scenic interest of the original route running south of Mandan. Allow me to mention a few places of importance. Crossing the railroad tracks, the traveler enters a most picturesque scene. A beautiful stretch of road bordered by beautiful timber, a pleasing relief from the tireless prairie country has just come over beyond either Bismarck or Mandan. Picturesque river bluffs lie on the right after crossing the Heart River bridge, where many a skirmish between the Indian and Redman has taken place. Five miles south of Mandan, on Lincoln, most tourists know that here was the last home of General Custer and the flower of the noble Seventh Cavalry. History and fiction abounds with the life of this place. It is woven into the literature of America. Every school boy has studied it, and loves it. From here on, the route presents nothing after setting most pleasing to the eye and satisfying to the searcher for remnants of the past. There is Sibley Island. Bend, the old River Side Ranch, the badlands around Sugar Loaf Butte, Glencoe Bend and Fort Rice. Fort Rice where Chief Gall, Sitting Bull and their warriors lay siege and made life more interesting than a western movie to the happy men who made their stand on prairie shore beside the Mandan. There before highway fights were dreamed of. Southwest lies Palace Butte, south stands Barn Butte and between runs Dead Man's Coulee. Coming down from the highlands the traveler enters the cool woods about the Parkin Ranch. This old place beside the winding Cannon Ball River holds more of the past, more connections with the past than any other I know of. It was a real ranch where famous men stopped to rest and to spend hours of social intercourse before going on their way to make history, the most of which has never been preserved. On the hill above the ranch are the graves of Mrs. Alma Parkin and Mrs. Louise Van Selen, daughter of Mrs. Major Galpin, and beside them lies H. S. Parkin, the man who made the ranch famous.

In Indian Country

Crossing the Cannon Ball—on the new bridge?—the route will wind through the Indian country. Here stand the primitive homes of the Sioux, once proud foes of the white man. Each moment will pass greets the eye, and time is built, until Fort Yates is reached. Fort Yates has a glorious past, a pleasant present and a hopeful future. Here lies Sitting Bull. Here lies the brave Sioux police, who killed him. Here stands the Standing Rock, a legendary petrifaction object of unregarded love—a Sioux woman turned to stone because of her love. Here too the remnants of a superb, picturesque, tradition-loving civilization to the past. The tom-tom

CHILDREN AFFORD REAL HAPPINESS

By Marian Hale
 NEA Service Writer

Despite feminism, women's interest in politics, business and professional life, the time is coming when women will rightfully think of motherhood as the greatest source of happiness and the most enriching experience a woman can have.

This is the belief of Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, R. N., who through her scientific study and her teaching at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Training School for Nurses has become an international authority on maternity and baby welfare.

She is one of the few Americans invited to attend the Conference on Infant Welfare to be held in London in July under the patronage of the king and queen.

The reluctance on the part of the modern woman to understand what should be the joyous responsibilities of motherhood is based largely on fear which is an outgrowth of superstition," she says, "and this fear must be dispelled by knowledge."

"As soon as a woman finds she is to be a mother she should consult a physician. Statistics prove that a large proportion of the perils which may lead to loss of life or invalidism may easily be prevented and corrected in the early stages of the new life's development."

The theory of invalidism in connection with prospective motherhood is groundless and has been long exploded. There is no reason why the average woman should not feel strong, buoyant and happy during the months in which she expects her child.

She points out that many women did not achieve the top-notch of fame until several children had been born to them. Madame Schumann-Heink, the mother of 10, is an outstanding example, as well as Louise Homer, Alma Gluck, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Ethel Barrymore, Madame Curie and others.

"Women are learning, however," she concluded, "that they really can have a great deal of fun and express themselves to their highest satisfaction bringing up their children. It is a scientific pursuit. A happy, safeguarded childhood means a healthy, contented life. People are beginning to recognize the intelligence and quick understanding of children, and parents are broadening their experience to be interesting to their children."

Mrs. Pearl Borresen, who has purchased the Moline Millinery Modes will continue the establishment under the trade name. Mrs. Borresen had conducted millinery shops successfully in other cities and has had several years' experience in the business. The theory of invalidism in connection with prospective motherhood is groundless and has been long exploded. There is no reason why the average woman should not feel strong, buoyant and happy during the months in which she expects her child.

She points out that many women did not achieve the top-notch of fame until several children had been born to them. Madame Schumann-Heink, the mother of 10, is an outstanding example, as well as Louise Homer, Alma Gluck, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Ethel Barrymore, Madame Curie and others.

"Women are learning, however," she concluded, "that they really can have a great deal of fun and express themselves to their highest satisfaction bringing up their children. It is a scientific pursuit. A happy, safeguarded childhood means a healthy, contented life. People are beginning to recognize the intelligence and quick understanding of children, and parents are broadening their experience to be interesting to their children."

Despite feminism, women's interest in politics, business and professional life, the time is coming when women will rightfully think of motherhood as the greatest source of happiness and the most enriching experience a woman can have.

This is the belief of Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, R. N., who through her scientific study and her teaching at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Training School for Nurses has become an international authority on maternity and baby welfare.

She is one of the few Americans invited to attend the Conference on Infant Welfare to be held in London in July under the patronage of the king and queen.

The reluctance on the part of the modern woman to understand what should be the joyous responsibilities of motherhood is based largely on fear which is an outgrowth of superstition," she says, "and this fear must be dispelled by knowledge."

"As soon as a woman finds she is to be a mother she should consult a physician. Statistics prove that a large proportion of the perils which may lead to loss of life or invalidism may easily be prevented and corrected in the early stages of the new life's development."

ALIENS ARE "BOOTLEGGED"

Hundreds Are Being Smuggled in Nightly at Detroit Alone

BY ROY J. GIBBONS

Detroit, May 21.—Hundreds of aliens, denied admission to the United States through legal channels, are "bootlegged" across the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers every night, declares P. L. Prentiss, in charge of the 11th immigration district.

He does not attempt to estimate the number smuggled across the line each year, "because Detroit, which is believed to be one of the principal centers for such activities."

Several methods are used to "bootleg" aliens into the United States. A known ring on the Canadian side transports aliens at from $10 to $25 a head across the river in small boats.

These smugglers have recently become so bold that they carry on their operations in broad daylight.

Other aliens effect an entrance by posing as American citizens when they arrive on the numerous ferry boats plying between Detroit and Canada.

These ferries carry monthly 500,000 passengers.

Great numbers of other foreigners are hidden in box cars on the Canadian side, and after passing through the Michigan Central Railroad tunnel under the Detroit River, make good their escape hundreds of miles from the border.

Dr. Prentiss says he is powerless to check this "back door" entrance.

He has but 51 employees to aid him. Most of this force is detailed to clerical duty.

Inspectors, hard to find because of the inadequate salaries paid, are all needed at the ferry slips to examine passengers dumped upon the trolleys.

American side at five-minute intervals. Inspectors stationed at the ferry docks are faced with a tremendous task.

Playing at the game of "guess who I am if you are able," these agents must make pretense of sorting the multitude.

Oftentimes there is nothing in the appearance of mixed English stock arriving from Canada to differentiate from typical American citizens who have crossed over for a holiday and are permitted to return without passport.

That is why inspectors resort to canny tricks to aid them in their trade.

Canadians trying to pass the gates for other purposes than work in Detroit factories are spotted, the inspectors say, by mail-order house variety of clothing and ruddy complexions.

Canadians also wear their hats straight, while Americans nearly all ways pull theirs down with some degree of rakish tilt.

With an actual coast line of almost 300 miles, extending from Sheboygan, Mich., to Port Clinton, O., for which he is held responsible, Dr. Prentiss has only two inspectors for patrol duty at night. He has no boats or armed forces.

Deportations are few because scarcely any of the smuggled aliens are caught.

The law permits any foreigner who has lived across the border for five years to come into the United States.

Many aliens who have lived in Canada but a few months try to get under this provision with forged credentials and affidavits, testifying to their longer residence.

Canadian hotel keepers have told Prentiss that numerous smuggling rings in Canada were running their business by openly soliciting aliens arriving from Canadian seaports and herding them into concentration camps until an opportunity presented for ferreting them across to the American side.

"The situation is grievous and has been so for years," Dr. Prentiss informs.

"I have no doubt but that smuggling operations will be redoubled during the present year due to recent Congressional action cutting down the number of aliens permitted to enter through legal channels."

"Canadian officials, however, are rendering every sort of assistance and co-operation to help us check the traffic."

"They are handicapped, though, because they cannot prevent any person leaving their country who has gained legal entrance."

"There is scarcely any sort of adequate patrol to prevent crossing."

"Just now, the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers seem to be the hunting ground of the numerous smuggling rings which we know are thriving from a prosperous business in contraband aliens."

STOCKS BREAK IN TRADING

Action Followed Passage of Soldier Bonus

New York, May 21.—Wall Street's initial reaction to the enactment of the soldier bonus bill was a break of 1 to 6 points in stock prices, a drop of 15 to 25 points in cotton prices and a tapering off of quoted values in the bond market yesterday. Before the day was over stock prices recovered about one-third of their loss, cotton quotations cancelled their early declines and bonds rallied to just below Monday's final figures.

Thirty-two stocks, including such leaders as U. S. Steel, common, Baldwin, Studebaker, General Motors, Dupont, Anaconda Copper, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, established

FARM BOARD FIGHT OPENED

Senator Howell of Nebraska Presses Opposition to Nominees

Washington, May 21.—The fight against the nominations of members of the federal farm loan board by the late President Harding was renewed by Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, this time on the floor of the senate after the nominations had been favorably reported by the banking committee late yesterday.

Entering a series of charges involving the conduct of the board and declaring the question had arisen as to whether the "senate could afford to put its stamp of approval on the methods" of administration adopted by the board, the Nebraska senator was met with the assertion by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, a member of the committee, that the nominations had been approved after a complete hearing.

The nominees—Lewis J. Pettit, of Kansas; Elmer S. Landes, of Ohio; Merton L. Conroy, of Nebraska; and Edward E. Jones, of Pennsylvania—were given recess appointments a year ago by President Harding and their names were sent to the senate last December by President Coolidge.

Senator Howell charged there has been "a violation of a cardinal principle of public policy" which should be assessed against the board in the matter of the appointment of Charles E. Lobdell, its former chairman, to the post of fiscal agent, at a salary of $25,000 per year. This action he declared to be "unlawful procedure in the creation of a new official."

COUPLE FOUND DEAD, HUSBAND SHOT BY WIFE

Wisconsin Sheriff Seeks to Learn Exact Motives For the Tragedy

DAKOTA MAN INVOLVED

Princeton, Wisconsin, May 21.—The bodies of Rudolph Shirlock, 50 years old, and his wife, Ida, 33 years old, were found at the Shirlock home three miles from here today. The man and his wife died from gunshot wounds, which the sheriff representatives believe were inflicted by Mrs. Shirlock.

Neighbors who have not seen evidence of life about the home for about 36 hours investigated and found Shirlock's body about 100 feet from the farm house with a gunshot wound in the back. Further investigation revealed the body of Mrs. Shirlock with a gunshot wound in the head.

A shotgun was found beside Mrs. Shirlock's body. A string tied to one trigger gave an indication of the manner in which she met her death.

According to the records here Shirlock filed action for divorce from his wife and the case was to have come up for trial at the June term of court in Greenlake county.

Sheriff John Eaton, who was called to the farm, found a note which was written by Mrs. Shirlock, addressed to Rudolph Shirlock of Ames, N. D., a brother of her husband.

The note read: "You came here looking for trouble and you sure found it. Now take what's left."

According to neighbors, Rudolph came here last week to attempt to prevent the pending divorce action. He was last seen in Princeton Sunday and authorities here say he has been missing since that time.

Physicians who examined the bodies say that the man and his wife had been dead probably 48 hours when found. Sheriff Eaton is attempting to learn the whereabouts of Rudolph in an endeavor to learn what attitude the dead couple took toward the divorce action.

CRESSY TELLS HOW HE BECAME PROP. OF RINK

Started as Saw Miller With the Idea of Becoming a Lumber King

BY WILL CRESSY (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

I always like to come to Portland, Maine; because it was here that I came when I left "the parental roof tree." (I don't mean by that that my parents lived in a tree; it is just a quotation, and I don't know what it means, but it sounds kind of cute, so I used it.)

I came here and started in as a saw miller in a saw mill, firm in the intention to rise to the very top of the saw mill profession.

But six weeks convinced me that as a saw miller I was a good roller skater. So I quit sawing and went to skating. And in another month I was the proud "Prop. & Mgr." of a rink at North Gorham (Pop. 1103).

But it was really at Portland that I got my REAL start. For it was here that the Sheriff caught me and gave me a start that probably stunted my growth.

Maine is the State that produced Mr. Neal Dew, Senator Volstead's grandfather, and the inventor of the Water Wagon, hard cider, home brew and side doors.

Maine was the original "Dry" State. It was here that a wink in the drug store saved nine in the hotel.

Portland is surrounded by islands; and the islands are surrounded by forts; and the forts are surrounded by cannons. Most any pleasant afternoon these guns are seen shooting out to sea, at targets 12 and 15 miles out. And in the evening dozens of launches and yachts go out there to see if they can find the holes in the water—or something.

Picture Pans will be interested to learn that Owen Moore conducts one of the largest dry goods stores in Portland.

The name itself, Portland, is unique, as very few "ports" are on land, most of them being out at sea.

Portland was at one time quite a literary center. A couple of boys by the names of Louell and Wendellworth were turning out stuff that would compare favorably today with anything done by George Ade or Ring Lardner.

A Portland man did not invent Portland Cement, the stuff that so many States do NOT build their roads of. One, however, did develop the Portland Fancy dance, which was considered the height of decadence along in the sixties and seventies.

It was a Portland man who discovered a way to make "Sa" spell "socks." For just below there he started a settlement which he spelled "Saco" and pronounced "Sock-oh." But he did not make the idea stick very well, for shortly after another Portland man started a town, called it "Caseo" and pronounced it "Casko."

Maine used to build many ships to go to all parts of the world. Of course they still build them; but now they are only built to go out 12 miles.

Maine is peculiarly situated in that it has at one end BAR Harbor and at the other end RYE Beach. But the combination does not work out. I believe they are now trying, though, to get them moved up nearer ROCK-land.

But to me personally Portland's greatest attraction is that it is only a three-dollar car fare from our Summer home, and we must always have that much left at the end of our vacation time so we can get there for our opening date.

OVERLAND SALES BEYOND 1923

Willis-Overland retail sales for the first quarter of 1924 exceeded those for the same period of 1923. President John N. Willis told stockholders at the annual meeting held in Toledo during the past week.

In addition, sales for the second or current quarter are running at a rate in excess of those of last year, which was a record one for the company.

Mr. Willis dwelt at some length on his recent 15,000 mile trip from coast to coast, taken for the express purpose of learning retail sales conditions at first hand. He emphatically declared that the soundness of business conditions everywhere warranted a feeling of optimism and added that he is confident of the continuance of a very active demand for automobiles during the

Group Meeting at Minot Asks Action Taken

Minot, N. D., May 21.—Resolutions declaring that the next session of the legislature should be petitioned to enact a law that will lodge in the banking board or some suitable board or commission the authority to pass upon the need of additional banking institutions in any community and disapprove of application for charters when advisable were adopted by the Northwest group of the state bankers' association, meeting here last night. The resolutions express the belief that some additional legislation is needed to strengthen the supervision of the banking business "and more thoroughly divorce the same from all political control of influence."

Hans Miller of Rydal was elected president of the group and R. A. Johnson of Makoti was named vice-president. Other officers are: A. H. Kurth, Minot, secretary-treasurer.

Ancestor worship

The Chinese pray to their ancestors. But they do more than that. They allow themselves to be guided by family tradition in their every thought and action. The principal difficulty facing the introduction of modern improvements into China is the universal objection: "This is not as our fathers did."

Imagine saying that we did not want electricity because our forefathers were satisfied with candles.

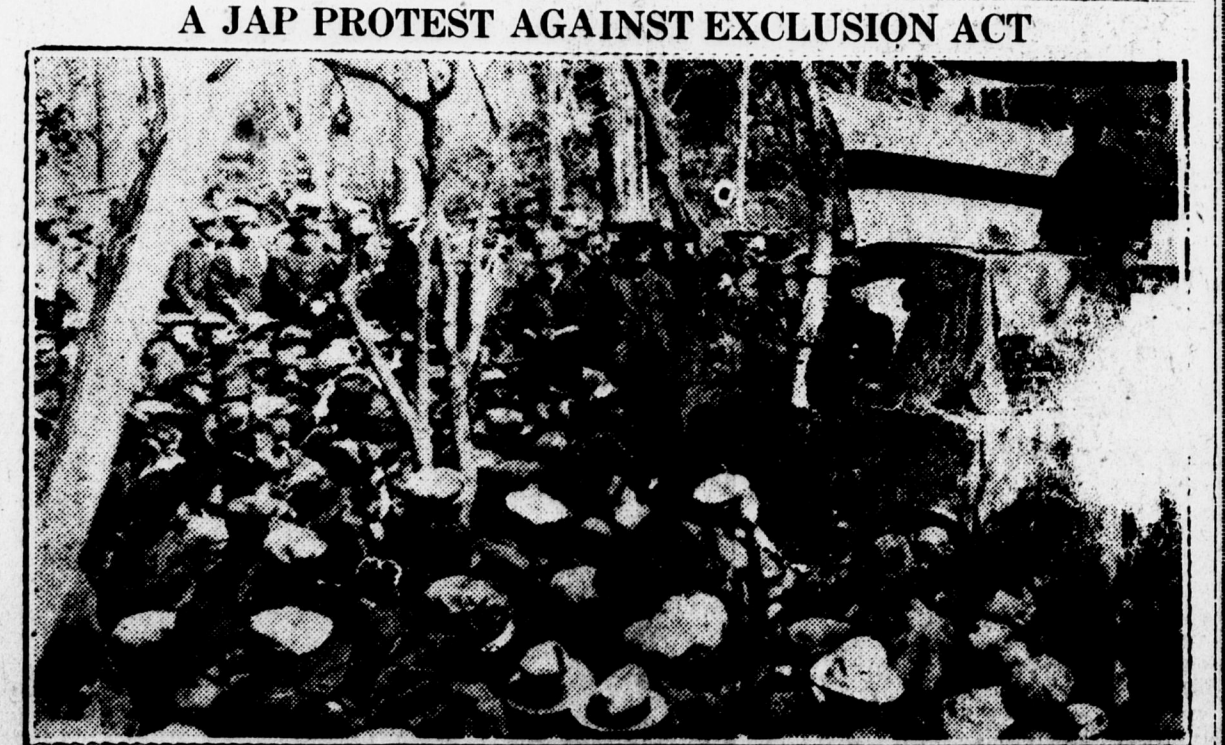

Though we never went as far as the Chinese, our conservatism in the past often went to considerable lengths. Think of the telephone, of the motor car. How much encouragement did they get at first?

Advertising more than anything else has made of us a nation willing to judge something new on its merits, rather than on narrow, ancient traditions.

Advertising today is as necessary as electricity, sanitation and rapid transit. It is more than the system by which we are kept informed of every new improvement that is to our advantage. It is the catalog wherein, every day, all manner of articles are listed for us with their individual advantages.

Read the advertisements. Be guided by them. They will help you in making your selections. They will save you money.

TO BUY THE NEW IS TO PROGRESS—TO LEARN OF IT FIRST IS TO READ ADVERTISING
